MRS. HARDING IS IMPROVED: DELAY OPERATION PLAN

Temperature Drops Point Since Sunday Night Bulletin Shows

POSTPONE SURGERY

Physicians Will Await Further Developments Before Operating

Washington, Sept. 11.—After lingering between life and death for three days, Mrs. Warren G. Harding, wife of the president, is improved today and the contemplated operation upon her kidneys has been deferred pending further developments, according to an official bulletin issued from the White House shortly after 10 o'clock.

The statement, issued under the signature of Brig. General Charles E. Sawyer, White House physician, following a conference with Dr. Charles Mayo, famous surgeon, of Rochester, Minn., follows:

Mrs. Harding's condition at 9:30: "Temperature 99.5.

"Pulse 96.

"Respiration 30.

"Night less restless. Elimination increased.

"Complications subsiding. General appearance indicates improvement. Operative procedure deferred."

The information given out in this brief bulletin shows that Mrs. Harding's temperature has decreased one point since the last previous statement was issued at 9 last night. At that time her pulse was 116. The beat has now slowed up 20 beats to the minute. Respiration was 36 last night compared with 30 this morning.

After a conversation with George B. Christian, Jr., the president's secretary, Senator McCormick of Illinois, told newspapermen on duty at the White House that Mrs. Harding's condition was more encouraging than last night, when it was stated officially that she was resting comfortably.

As she becomes more able to withstand the shock which would result from surgical treatment, there were indications that an operation would be performed.

PHYSICIANS FIGHTING FOR LIFE

Washington, Sept. 11.—Here are the physicians who are working to save Mrs. Harding's life:

Dr. Charles Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., internationally famous surgeon; one of the noted Mayo brothers.

Dr. C. E. Sawyer, for years the Harding family physician at Marion.

Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, of Marion, his son.

Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., of Columbus, Ohio, the president's brother.

Dr. Joel T. Boone, naval surgeon on the Mayflower, the presidential yacht.

Dr. John Finney, famous surgeon of Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore.

be performed. A decision with respect to an operation, however, depends largely on the result of laboratory tests being made by attending physicians.

Following the examinations conducted Sunday by Dr. Charles B. Mayo, of Minnesota, Dr. John Finney of Baltimore, and other physicians, Mrs. Harding slept peacefully during the night.

President Harding after spending most of the day at his wife's bedside, retired early this morning. Other physicians went to their homes and hotels, leaving only Dr. Mayo and his wife at the White House, as the guests of the president.

The improvements noted Sunday in Mrs. Harding's condition caused the surgeons who had been called here to decide upon the advisability of operating to postpone that decision until today.

They planned to meet at the White House this morning and to go into consultation immediately. It is understood that surgical relief for the patient will only be restored to when it is plain nothing else can save her life because it is expected that the operation itself might result fatally.

Personal friends of the president and Mrs. Harding, who spent many hours at the White House Sunday, left early this morning with optimistic reports of Mrs. Harding's condition, although the most hopeful of these were discounted by Brig. General Charles E. Sawyer, the White House physician. Dr. Sawyer still regards Mrs. Harding's condition as critical.

It was explained that an operation if it is decided upon, will consist of tapping the kidney to drain the poison that has accumulated, resulting in Mrs. Harding's illness.

Prayers for the recovery of the first lady were offered Sunday in Washington churches of all denominations.

GREEK KING QUILTS PALACE AS REVOLT THREATENS.

M. Venizelos with King Constantine

King Constantine, of Greece, once removed from his throne by the Allies, but later permitted to return, is reported to have quit the palace at Athens in the face of what appears to be a revolt against his unpopular war against the Turkish Nationalists and the terrible losses sustained by his utterly crushed army. It is believed the party supporting M. Venizelos, Premier, who stood by the allies in the World War will endeavor to step in and gain control of the nation.

Allies Concentrate Air Forces Against The Turks

Attempt Made to Prevent Turkish Army From Entering Thrace—New Greek Cabinet Seeking to Avert Domestic Catastrophe.

London, Sept. 11.—The Greek army, which was massed in Thrace to menace Constantinople from the north is withdrawing, according to advices received today from Constantinople.

Newspapers predict that the allies will concentrate a fleet of British airships along the Dardanelles and Sea of Marmara to prevent the Turks from trying to cross into Thrace.

Athens, Sept. 11.—The new Greek cabinet headed by M. Triantafyllides, who holds the posts of premier, minister of war and minister of Marine, began to function today after taking the oath to support the crown. It will attempt to avert a domestic catastrophe. All the new ministers are moderates. The Greek Crown prince has arrived.

Sensational reports are current. One is that former Premier Venizelos will attempt to return if King Constantine abdicates. Venizelos is leader of the anti-dynastic forces.

Greek military headquarters have been removed to the island of Chios in the Aegean sea.

Typhus is reported to have broken out among the Greek refugees at Smyrna.

Near east relief workers at Smyrna report that their supplies have become exhausted. Thousands of fugitives are blocking the roads leading into Smyrna. The misery is acute. Many are dying of starvation.

United States blue jackets are protecting the near east relief workers at Smyrna while French and Italian soldiers are guarding the railways and churches, said advices from Smyrna today.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, head of the Turkish nationalist government and commander in chief of the Turkish army is reported to be on his way to make triumphal entry into Smyrna.

There are indications that the near east problem will be settled by secret diplomacy. King Alexander of Yugoslavia has arrived here incognito. So, also, has Sir Basil Zarahoff, Greek financier and known as the "richest man in the world." It is understood that Premier Lloyd George and Premier Poincare will meet soon either in Geneva, London or Paris to discuss a joint policy in the near east. Premier Lloyd George is anxious for an Anglo-French agreement before any decisive move is made in the near east. The British and French are believed to have sufficient troops to protect the allied interests in Asia Minor.

FIGHT TO MAKE STRIKE INJUNCTION PERMANENT BEGINS IN CHICAGO

U. S. Attorney General Daugherty Opens Legal Battle Flanked By Imposing Array Of Counsel and Backed By Tons Of Evidence — Proceedings Open Monday.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Attorney Donald C. Richberg, as counsel for the railroad unions involved created a sensation at the railroad injunction hearing before U. S. Judge James H. Wilkerson, in federal court here today when he opened his argument for dismissal of the drastic writ.

Richberg, his voice vibrating through the courtroom, charged that Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, chief law enforcing officer of the United States had "betrayed the confidence of the court and consequently is betraying respect for the court and law and order."

Attorney Richberg's motion to dismiss the restraining order was made the first order of business by Judge Wilkerson when the hearing to make permanent the rail injunction opened. The court room, formerly occupied by ex-Judge K. M. Landis, and once the scene of the famous Standard Oil and I. W. W. cases where Judge Landis imposed a fine of $29,000,000 against the oil company and sentenced "Big Bill" Haywood and other I. W. W. leaders to prison, was packed with attorneys and spectators.

B. M. Jewell, head of the strikers and John Scott, his secretary, were not at the hearing, giving their attention to the peace agreement of the strikers national policy committee. Richberg, in moving for dismissal of the writ, charged that the attorney general has misrepresented the facts and that the "court was imposed upon by the chief officer of the nation and the confidence of the court betrayed."

Flanked by an imposing array of counsel and supported literally by tons of evidence, United States Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty was ready today to begin the fight to make permanent the temporary injunction against the striking railroad workers.

The proceedings were opened in Federal Court before Judge James H. Wilkerson this morning.

Opposing the force of government counsel was attorney Donald C. Richberg counsel in chief for the shopcraft unions supported by a group of labor attorneys.

"We are ready so far as the government is concerned," was the attorney general's comment as the case was about to be called. "Requests have been made for modification of the restraining order in some respects. We will, of course, consider them in due time. There are questions which will be submitted to the court."

While the attorney's general's assurance that requests for modification of the restraining order will be "considered" was not construed as binding the government to any concessions, Mr. Daugherty has been repeatedly quoted since the injunction was granted as saying drastic provisions which has been interpreted as curbing free speech, free press and free assembly would be toned down if not eliminated in case the injunction is made permanent.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—The momentous question of a settlement of the rail strike with a group of railroads estimated all the way from 30 to 60 in number and controlling from 30,000 to 50,000 miles of track was before B. M. Jewell, president of the federated shopcrafts and the unions policy committee of ninety today.

Members of the committee were all present this morning but whether the group settlement proposition would be acted upon was problematical. It was considered likely that the interest of the strike leaders would be chiefly concerned in the federal injunction proceedings before Judge Wilkerson today and that action on the strike would not be reached until tomorrow.

Mr. Jewell, however, was ready to personally inform the committee of the progress he had made toward ending the strike and was prepared to appeal for authorization to make peace with individual roads.

The fact that agreement on different roads may vary although all would be basically the same, and that Jewell must persuade seventy-five per cent of the committee to send 25 per cent of the striking railroad workers back to work was also tend to delay action. It was known strenuous opposition to the group settlement plan would come up at the meeting. Chairman on some roads not concerned in the settlement plan were reported planning a stiff fight against any break in the strike. "Settle with all or with none," is their attitude.

Approval of the group settlement plan would mean immediate peace with some 30 roads and with as many more within a short time, it is believed.

The peace plan of President Jewell, which will be the basis for all separate agreements embraces three points as follows:

1—All strikers to be put back to work at once.

2—All men now at work, who are competent, to be retained.

3—All matters not covered in the agreements to be referred to a committee of ten, five of them from the roads and five from the shopcrafts.

Washington, Sept. 11.—With all controversial issues in the new Republican tariff settled by senate and house conferences, administration leaders today planned to take up soldier bonus legislation with a view to its final enactment within 10 days.

The house bill will be considered in conference Wednesday where senate and house harmonizers will adjust differences in the measure as it passed the two branches of congress. The McNary reclamation amendment, added to the bill in the senate, was expected to be defeated in conference. The Simmons amendment, which the senate added, to finance the bonus from foreign debt payments, was favored by the conferees.

Administration leaders planned to complete a conference report on the bonus by Thursday and the agreement then will be laid before the house for consideration as soon as the tariff is out of the way. The bonus men would follow the tariff into the senate. Its enactment this week is problematical but indications are it will go to the White House for presidential action early next week.

The tariff agreement, meanwhile, was laid before the Democratic conferees today. This action, taken as a matter of routine, will not affect the report agreed upon by the Republican leaders. It will be presented in the house tomorrow and debate there started Wednesday.

Under present plans the tariff may also be debated in the senate later this week with a hope of reaching a final agreement by the end of the week. The bill then will go to the president for his signature, being finally enacted into law.

The conference agreement it was learned settled four big controversial issues between the two houses. These affected sugar, wool, cotton and dye rates and were as follows:

1—A compromise tariff of $1.76 100 pounds on Cuban sugar with $2.20 per 100 pounds on all other sugar, instead of the $1.86 and $2.30 passed by the senate.

2—A compromise rate of 31 cents per pound on wool, using the clean content basis, instead of 33 cents per pound as passed by the senate or 25 cents a pound as passed by the house.

3—Restoration of long staple cotton to the free list instead of a tariff of seven cents a pound as passed by the senate.

4—Restriction of the dye embargo for one year instead of excessively high protective duties as passed by the senate.

All administrative features, such as the delegation of authority to President Harding to raise and lower tariff rates, were retained in the bill with slight modifications to meet international obligations.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Great Britain is expected to send a financial mission to Washington within ten days to begin negotiations for funding the $5,000,000,000 British debt to the United States, it was said at the treasury department today. Officials have not been informed of the personnel of the delegation.

Treasury officials said there appears to be no further doubt that the British will be prepared to liquidate the semi-annual interest of $125,000,000 due in October, and arrange for prompt payment of interest falling due each six months afterward.

ATTEMPT TO IMP EACH DAUGHERTY MADE IN THE HOUSE ON MONDAY

Rep. O. E. Keller, Republican of Minnesota, Charges Attorney General With "Abridging Freedom of Speech, and Assemblage."

Washington, Sept. 11.—An attempt to impeach Attorney General Daugherty was made in the house this afternoon by Rep. Oscar E. Keller, Republican of Minnesota.

Keller rose to the "question of highest privilege" announcing he desired to bring impeachment proceedings against the attorney general.

Before he could state his charges or explain on what grounds he desired to impeach the attorney general his remarks were blocked by Rep. Mondell, the Republican leader, who demanded a roll call on a point of no quorum. The roll call then started.

As soon as he was permitted to proceed, Keller charged that in obtaining the railroad strike injunction in the federal court at Chicago, Daugherty had "abridged the freedom of speech, press and peaceful assemblage in violation of the constitution," and that he had failed to make prosecutions when evidence was laid before him.

Rep. Blanton, Democrat of Texas, raised a formal objection, maintaining that Keller's charges were general and not sufficient upon which to base impeachment proceedings.

Speaker Gillett over ruled Blanton's objections and Keller continued with his attack upon the attorney general.

GOVERNOR ASKS TO NAME STATE ADMINISTRATION

Declares Tremendous Burden on Ordinary Citizen Is Threatened.

ADDRESSES ASSEMBLY

Recommends Powers to Seize and Operate Ohio Mines if Necessary

Columbus, Sept. 11.—Declaring that, unless a skyrocketing tendency of coal prices is immediately checked, a tremendous direct burden will be saddled on the ordinary citizen and will be reflected in the cost of every other product involving the consumption of coal, Governor Davis today, in a message to the members of the 84th General Assembly of Ohio, urged speedy enactment of legislation designed to insure fair prices for coal and an adequate supply to the citizens of Ohio.

The governor recommended that authority be vested in him to appoint a state fuel administrator, to be paid by the state and subject to removal by the governor, with power to compel submission of coal operators and dealers of all mining and distributing costs and to establish on the basis of such information, subject to the approval of the governor, official state "fair prices" of coal at the mine and through dealers. Violation of such "fair prices" Gov. Davis declared, should subject the violator to criminal prosecution. The governor, however, urged that, on all such cases the right be reserved to members of the coal industry to appeal to the courts in an effort to show why such prices would not be fair.

The governor recommended, also, that the proposed state fuel administrator, through the governor, be empowered, in the event that the supply of coal available to the public at the "fair prices" established proved inadequate, to seize and operate, with provision made for proper compensation to their owners, all or any part, of the mines in Ohio deemed necessary to supply the fuel needs of Ohioans, subject also to the operators right of appeal from any such action.

In this connection, Gov. Davis urged the legislators to provide for an adequate rotary fund with which to pay mine operating costs. If the state seized any mines, and such fund be reimbursed from sales of fuel.

"The present is a temporary emergency and this drastic authority should therefore be limited in time to correspond with its existence," Gov. Davis told the legislators. "However, the urgency of the situation now is such that the need for prompt action to cope with it is to be emphasized.

"Run of mine coal prices now are higher than at any time in Ohio coal mining history, not considering strike periods, except in 1917, our first year, and preceding the establishment of the federal fuel administration," the governor said.

"I am authoritatively advised by representatives of large industrial interests that coal for industrial uses is costing them today 40 per cent more than the highest price ever paid by them before, other than in strike periods. Coal which the domestic consumer must rely on has risen to similar almost unattainable heights.

A forcing down of these prices to a level that will be equally fair to producer and consumer is to be desired therefore at the earliest possible moment in order that the effect of these now existing may be minimized to the greatest possible extent, and the benefit of cheaper coal quickly extended to every domestic, commercial and industrial consumer," declared Gov. Davis.

Jackson, Cal., Sept. 11.—Estimates varied today from five to nine days more before the 47 entombed miners in the Argonaut gold mine will be liberated, following the announcement that rescue crews laboring on the 3900 foot level of the Kennedy mine had reached and are now drilling the solid rock of 141 feet, the last barrier separating the Argonaut from the Kennedy. FORMER PREMIER CLEMENCEAU OF FRANCE TO DENY ALL CHARGES OF MILITARISM

"The Tiger" to Leave for This Country About November 1 to Plead Cause of His Land Before America Comes in Unofficial Capacity

Paris, Sept. 11.—When former Premier Clemenceau goes to the United States in November to deny the charges that France is militaristic or imperialistic, he will travel as a private citizen and will accept neither banquets nor public honors, he revealed today.

In an interview with a correspondent of the Petit Parisien at his summer cottage in the department of Vendee, "the Tiger" said:

"I cannot reveal now, exactly what I intend to tell the Americans because then it would not be worth while for me to make the trip."

"All I wish is that the Americans will listen to me. The moment has come to tell the United States that their people have been deceived; we are neither militaristic nor imperialistic; that the French people merit free America's enthusiastic confidence."

"Rudyard Kipling, whom I love, was so hard struck by the war that he also was deceived. His diatribe against the United States was unjust. If America demands my opinion I shall give it. I expect to have four conferences and then leave for America about the first of November.

"But it must be understood that I have no mission. I will not accept a banquet nor anything similar while I am over there. I shall speak in my own name; I represent no one else. I will recall that the object of our war was peace. If the allies had remained in peace what they had been in time of war the world would not be floundering in the midst of so much misery and difficulty. I shall speak much of America and little of England to the Americans."

"I have my word to say about the treaty which deprives Germany of any excuse for a war of revenge. If we had made an imperialistic peace (which France's adversaries reproach us as having done); if we had four or five protesting German deputies in the chamber such as the Reichstag had between 1870 and 1914 what would we hear? All that I say to America I will say simply and gently. Simply because America is a country of simplicity and straight forwardness; gently because the Americans are our great friends."

The conference agreement it was learned settled four big controversial issues between the two houses. These affected sugar, wool, cotton and dye rates and were as follows:

1.—A compromise tariff of $1.76 100 pounds on Cuban sugar with $2.20 per 100 pounds on all other sugar, instead of the $1.86 and $2.30 passed by the senate.

2.—A compromise rate of 31 cents per pound on wool, using the clean content basis, instead of 33 cents per pound as passed by the senate or 25 cents a pound as passed by the house.

3.—Restoration of long staple cotton to the free list instead of a tariff of seven cents a pound as passed by the senate.

4.—Restriction of the dye embargo for one year instead of excessively high protective duties as passed by the senate.

All administrative features, such as the delegation of authority to President Harding to raise and lower tariff rates, were retained in the bill with slight modifications to meet international obligations.

EXPECT ACTION ON BONUS BILL IN TEN DAYS

Administration Leaders Take Up Question With View of Passage

ADJUST DIFFERENCES

Tariff Agreement Laid Before Democratic Conference Monday

Washington, Sept. 11.—With all controversial issues in the new Republican tariff settled by senate and house conferences, administration leaders today planned to take up soldier bonus legislation with a view to its final enactment within 10 days.

The house bill will be considered in conference Wednesday where Senate and house harmonizers will adjust differences in the measure as it passed the two branches of congress. The McNary reclamation amendment, added to the bill in the senate, was expected to be defeated in conference. The Simmons amendment, which the senate added, to finance the bonus from foreign debt payments, was favored by the conference.

Administration leaders planned to complete a conference report on the bonus by Thursday and the agreement then will be laid before the house for consideration as soon as the tariff is out of the way. The bonus men would follow the tariff into the senate. Its enactment this week is problematical but indications are it will go to the White House for presidential action early next week.

The tariff agreement, meanwhile, was laid before the Democratic conference today. This action, taken as a matter of routine, will not affect the report agreed upon by the Republican leaders. It will be presented in the house tomorrow and debate there started Wednesday.

Under present plans the tariff may also be debated in the senate later this week with a hope of reaching a final agreement by the end of the week. The bill then will go to the president for his signature, being finally enacted into law.

Shopcrafts Unions Await Injunction Case Outcome

Momentous Question of Settlement of Rail Strike Before Jewell and Policy Committee Delayed Until Tuesday It Is Now Believed.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—The momentous question of a settlement of the rail strike with a group of railroads estimated all the way from 30 to 60 in number and controlling from 30,000 to 50,000 miles of track was before B. M. Jewell, president of the federated shopcrafts and the unions policy committee of ninety today.

Members of the committee were all present this morning but whether the group settlement proposition would be acted upon was problematical. It was considered likely that the interests of the strike leaders would be chiefly concerned in the federal injunction proceedings before Judge

Wilkerson today and that action on the strike would not be reached until tomorrow.

Mr. Jewell, however, was ready to personally inform the committee of the progress he had made toward ending the strike and was prepared to appeal for authorization to make peace with individual railroads.

The fact that agreements on different roads may vary although all would be basically the same, and that Jewell must persuade seventy-five per cent of the committee to send 25 per cent of the striking railroad workers back to work will also tend to delay action. It was known strenuous opposition to the group settlement plan would come up at the meeting. Chairman on some roads not concerned in the settlement plan were reported planning a stiff fight against any break in the strike. "Settle with all or with none," is their attitude.

Approval of the group settlement plan would mean immediate peace with some 30 roads and with many more within a short time, it is believed.

The peace plan of President Jewell, which will be the basis for all separate agreements embraces three points as follows:

1.—All strikers to be put back to work at once.

2.—All men now at work, who are competent, to be retained.

3.—All matters not covered in the agreements to be referred to a committee of ten, five of them from the roads and five from the shopcrafts.

In this connection, Gov. Davis urged the legislators to provide for an adequate rotary fund with which to pay mine operating costs. If the state seized any mines, and such fund be reimbursed from sales of fuel.

"The present is a temporary emergency and this drastic authority should therefore be limited in time to correspond with its existence," Gov. Davis told the legislators. "However, the urgency of the situation now is such that the need for prompt action to cope with it is to be emphasized."

"Run of mine coal prices now are higher than at any time in Ohio coal mining history, not considering strike periods, except in 1917, our first war year, and preceding the establishment of the federal fuel administration," the governor said.

"I am authoritatively advised by representatives of large industrial interests that coal for industrial use is costing them today 40 per cent more than the highest price ever paid by them before, other than in strike periods. Coal which the domestic consumer must rely on has risen to similar almost unattainable heights."

"A forcing down of these prices to a level that will be equally fair to producer and consumer is to be desired therefore at the earliest possible moment in order that the effect of those now existing may be minimized to the greatest possible extent, and the benefit of cheaper coal quickly extended to every domestic, commercial and industrial consumer," declared Gov. Davis.

ATTEMPT TO IMPEACH DAUGHERTY MADE IN THE HOUSE ON MONDAY

Rep. O. E. Keller, Republican of Minnesota, Charges Attorney General With "Abridging Freedom of Speech, and Assemblage."

Washington, Sept. 11.—An attempt to impeach Attorney General Daugherty was made in the house this afternoon by Rep. Oscar E. Keller, Republican of Minnesota.

Keller rose to the "question of highest privilege" announcing he desired to bring impeachment proceedings against the attorney general.

Before he could state his charges or explain on what grounds he desired to impeach the attorney general, his remarks were blocked by Rep. Mondell, the Republican leader, who demanded a roll call on a point of no quorum. The roll call then started.

GOVERNOR ASKS TO NAME STATE ADMINISTRATION

Declares Tremendous Burden on Ordinary Citizen Is Threatened.

ADDRESSES ASSEMBLY

Recommends Powers to Seize and Operate Ohio Mines if Necessary

Columbus, Sept. 11.—Declaring that, unless a skyrocketing tendency of coal prices is immediately checked, a tremendous direct burden will be saddled on the ordinary citizen and will be reflected in the cost of every other product involving the consumption of coal, Governor Davis today, in a message to the members of the 84th general assembly of Ohio, urged speedy enactment of legislation designed to insure fuel prices for coal and an adequate supply to the citizens of Ohio.

The governor recommended that authority be vested in him to appoint a state fuel administrator, to be paid by the state and subject to removal by the governor, with power to compel submission by coal operators and dealers of all mining and distributing costs and to establish on the basis of such information, subject to the approval of the governor, official state "fair prices" of coal at the mine and through dealers. Violation of such "fair prices" Gov. Davis declared, should subject the violator to criminal prosecution. The governor, however, urged that, on all such prices the right be reserved to members of the coal industry to appeal to the courts in an effort to show why such prices would not be fair.

The governor recommended, also, that the proposed state fuel administrator, through the governor, be empowered, in the event that the supply of coal available to the public at the "fair prices" established proved inadequate, to seize and operate, with provision made for proper compensation to their owners, all or any part, of the mines in Ohio deemed necessary to supply the fuel needs of Ohioans, subject also to the operators right of appeal from any such action.

In this connection, Gov. Davis urged the legislators to provide for an adequate rotary fund with which to pay mine operating costs. If the state seized any mines, and such fund be reimbursed from sales of fuel.

"The present is a temporary emergency and this drastic authority should therefore be limited in time to correspond with its existence," Gov. Davis told the legislators. "However, the urgency of the situation now is such that the need for prompt action to cope with it is to be emphasized."

"Run of mine coal prices now are higher than at any time in Ohio coal mining history, not considering strike periods, except in 1917, our first war year, and preceding the establishment of the federal fuel administration," the governor said.

FORMER XENIAN MARRIED SATURDAY

The Rev. V. F. Brown, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church this city, officiated at an interesting ceremony Saturday night, with the marriage of Miss Louise Rogers, of Milford, to Mr. Hubert Holzlin, of Cincinnati, formerly of this city, at the bride's home in Milford at eight o'clock.

The marriage of Miss Rogers and Mr. Holzlin is of interest to a number of friends of the bridegroom's in this city, Mr. Holzlin being employed at the Pennsylvania ticket office in this city several months ago, for a year and a half.

Following their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Holzlin left for New York and Chicago, where they will spend their honeymoon, and will return to reside in Cincinnati, where Mr. Holzlin is employed at the Cincinnati Pennsylvania office.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, of North Galloway Street, have returned from Findlay, Ohio, where they spent the past week.

Mrs. William H. Tilford and daughter, Jean, returned home from Marion, Ohio Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Appgar and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brannen, spent Sunday in Cincinnati.

MORE THAN FIFTY WITNESSES WILL BE HEARD AT INQUEST

Fifty-six witnesses will be summoned to the coroner's inquest in the death of Volney Nichols, 18-year-old youth who was killed in a shooting fracas by a sheriff's posse last Tuesday, according to Dr. R. L. Haines, county coroner.

The number is believed the largest ever summoned for an investigation by a coroner, and the taking of testimony from these witnesses will require at least two days, it is believed by Coroner Haines.

In the absence of Miss Elsie Canby, court stenographer, Miss Bollen, of London, stenographer in the Madison County courts, has been employed to take the testimony in the case. The hearing of testimony will begin at eight o'clock in the morning, and continue all day, with adjournment in the evening, and resumption of the inquest Wednesday morning, until all witnesses have been heard. It is believed that attorneys representing the Nichols family and other farmers in the neighborhood of the shooting, will be present to cross-examine each witness.

Beyond preparations for the inquest events connected with the shooting are at a standstill. Patrolman Charles Simms, who was temporarily off duty under order, until sentiment regarding the shooting had died down, returned to duty Sunday night and walked his beat as usual.

Following the inquest Coroner Haines will render a verdict, which if it indicates guilt on the part of the officers, will also fix the degree. A copy of the transcript of the evidence taken at the inquest will also be filed as a matter of public record in the office of the Clerk of Courts, and further action will then be up to Prosecuting Attorney J. Kenneth Williamson and the grand jury.

Condition of Dorsey Nichols, 16, still remains favorable at Espey Hospital, and hope is entertained for his complete recovery. Warren Middleton, 16, who was shot in the arm, is also improving.

ST. BRIGIDS HAS BIG ENROLLMENT; TOPS OTHER YEARS

The largest number of students in the history of St. Brigid's Parochial School, has been enrolled for this school year, work in both elementary and high schools, it was announced when school started Monday morning.

A total of 195 students registered for this year's work on the regular registration day last week, while the average attendance of last year was about 181. The increase in enrollment this year indicates the gradual increase in attendance that has been evident each succeeding year.

Although there will practically be no change in the curriculum this year according to Sister Maria Gratia, who is principal of the school, new equipment has been provided for the physical laboratory and this branch of science, will thus be more elaborately dwelt upon. The commercial department will be continued this year and the equipment of this department has been augmented by the purchase of several new typewriters.

Eight teachers, nuns of the order of the Sisters of Charity, whose Mother House is at Cincinnati, compose the faculty of the school this year, with the Rev. Father Albert A. Burke, who also teaches several classes in the school, and acts as its superintendent.

The music department, which has been maintained for many years, will be a particular feature of the opportunities offered by the school this year, according to Sister Maria Gratia. The music department this year is in charge of Sister Mary Placidia, and this is her first year here. The department includes both school music, and the private teaching of all forms of instrumental and vocal at the Sister's residence.

Although school began Monday morning only a half-day session was in effect. The pupils first attended a special Mass in the Church and afterward repaired to the school. The half-day session will also be in effect Tuesday morning and full day sessions will begin Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Henry Lawrence Farrell, of New York City, is visiting her parents, Judge and Mrs. Marcus Shoup, of East Main Street.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church will meet in the Sunday School room of the church Monday night at 7:30, President Karl Bloom, announced.

Mrs. Mary Johnson who has been spending the past week with relatives at Bellefontaine, Ohio, will return to her home in this city Tuesday.

Edward Williams of St. Louis, Missouri, arrived in this city by motor Friday, and is spending several days with his nieces, the Misses Sarah and Eleanor Williams of East Church Street. Mr. Williams has just returned from a motor tour of the eastern states.

ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO MURDER DAYTON JUDGE PREVENTED

Dayton, Sept. 11.—An alleged attempt to murder Judge Roland W. Baggett of Domestic Relations Court, is believed to have been frustrated at noon when deputy sheriffs arrested August Weiland, against whom a divorce decree was recently granted.

Weiland is said to have threatened the life of the judge, who awarded the custody of his young son to another.

FORMER CLEVELAND MAYOR SUE FOR DIVORCE IS WORD

Cleveland, Sept. 11.—Suit for divorce, alleging "gross neglect of duty," asking permanent alimony and custody of their two year old son, was filed two months ago in insolvency court here. It became known today, by Mrs. Margaret Chilton Fitzgerald, of the Hotel Rector, New York, against William S. Fitzgerald, who retired last January, as mayor of Cleveland, having succeeded to that office upon the resignation of Harry L. Davis, in May 1910, to become a candidate for governor.

ABOUT 2,000 ARE PRESENT AS SCHOOL BELL CALLS MONDAY

About 2,000 youths between the ages of six and 18, with their faces so long that their chins almost dragged on the ground, pouched their sad and weary way to Xenia's various school buildings Monday morning.

With enrollment only approximated in some cases Monday morning, and visible indications that there would be later registrations that would run the total over the 2,000 mark, there will be more students attending school this year in Xenia than ever before.

Approximated figures show that 1,703 of these students are enrolled in the various public elementary and high schools in the city while 195 students are registered at St. Brigid's Parochial grade and high school. The public school enrollment by schools follows:

Central High School, 450.
McKinley, 437.
Lincoln, 356.
Spring Hill, 270.
Central, grades, 186.
Orient Hill, 52.

Of the enrollment at McKinley School, 192 are listed in the Junior high school, while 245 are elementary students. At the Lincoln building, 86 pupils are in the high school and 270 are enrolled in the grades. These figures total 1,752, with the additional 195 at St. Brigid's, indicates that 1,947 students are enrolled in schools in the city.

According to Miss Margaret Wead, secretary to Superintendent of Schools C. A. Waltz, the public school enrollment will increase within the next few weeks as later registrations are received, so that there will really be more than 2,000 in school here.

County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Aultman was unable to approximate the enrollment in the county and villages outside of Xenia, Monday, although all schools are now operating all over the county.

"CAP" STUBBS—Could It Be Possible!

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL ENROLLMENT THIS YEAR REACHES 450 FIRST DAY

That the enrollment at Central High School in the future will increase only as the population of the city increases, is a unique condition that is already making itself evident according to Harper C. Pendry.

Enrollment at Central High this year is approximately 450 students, an increase of practically 55 over last year, and that this figure will remain approximately constant due to the operations of the new school attendance law put into effect last year, is the belief of the high school head.

According to Principal Pendry the new attendance law requires compulsory attendance of all children between the ages of six and 18 years. Children six years of age or before December 31, will be admitted to school and a pupil may be released from school on an age and schooling certificate after reaching the age of 16 years, providing that child has already passed the seventh grade. The completion of the grades does not excuse a child from further school attendance.

All children, under this law, between the ages of 16 and 18, must hold age and schooling certificates in order to be employed in an occupation. Where children, thus provided, are released from school, they must return to their books within a week after such employment terminates, until they have passed the 18 year old limit. Parents must accompany the child and bring documentary proof of his or her age when making application for such certificates.

For this reason, according to Principal Pendry, all children under the age of 18 years are accounted for by the school system, which means that attendance in the high school in the future will not be influenced by the inclination. Heretofore the attendance has been based upon the number of incoming freshmen deciding to take up higher education, and the number of sophomores, juniors and seniors dropping out of school. Under the new law, the size of a class will remain practically constant all through high school, as most students graduate at the age of 18 or under, and since all the children under those ages are enrolled, there will not be likely an increased attendance in future years, unless the city grows in population and thus more children are eligible.

The senior class enrollment this year is the largest in the history of the Central High School also there being 87 students registered. These will possibly be augmented by late arrivals and registration within the next few weeks is expected to increase the enrollment. It is unusual according to Mr. Pendry, that the senior enrollment this year totals about one-fifth of the entire high school attendance while in past years the enrollment represented only about one-tenth of the total enrollment of the school. It is also unusual that the junior class is the largest class in school. It has been customary for the freshmen to have the largest class, the sophomores the next largest and the juniors and seniors third and fourth respectively. The present junior class is an indication of the workings of the attendance law. It was a large class when it entered school and the operations of the new law has forestalled the usual number of resignations, so that its number is practically intact. The freshmen class numbers 120, the sophomore class approximately 117 and the junior 125, all of these figures being subject to change by later registrations.

Devotionals by the Rev. G. A. Scott, pastor of the First M. E. Church officially opened Central High School Monday morning when all the students were assembled in the main hall. Superintendent of Schools C. A. Waltz then spoke to the assembled students, and was followed by Principal Pendry who outlined work for the year. Coach Earl F. Barger then addressed the entire student body, and issued a formal call for all football recruits for the first practice session at the Washington St. baseball park Monday evening. Beginning Tuesday the squad will be trained nightly at the new gridiron at the Fairgrounds.

THE REAL CAUSE OF GERMANY'S COLLAPSE.

The German financial collapse has been brought about not by the payments for reparations, but for the greatest part by the foolish and extravagant policy of the Government. Germany has enormously increased her expenses during the last three years. She has increased the number of officials. In the railways, for instance, there were in 1913 740,000 workmen. There are now 1,140,000; that is an increase of 41 per cent. That augmentation is even greater if one takes into account the fact that Alsace Lorraine has been given to France, Posen and a part of Silesia to Poland.

An enormous quantity of German capital has been smuggled abroad. The Germans themselves estimate between ten or twelve billions of gold marks, that is to say three billions of dollars, the amount of ready money that has left Germany to be placed in the neighboring countries, Switzerland, Holland, Scandinavia, even England. That is another important cause of the depreciation of the German currency.

The German Government has appropriated huge sums for the building of a strong merchant navy. This commercial German fleet is being rebuilt on a very great scale, not by private companies, as is the case everywhere, but with the funds furnished from the state treasury, which is a pure violation of the Treaty of Versailles. Violations of this kind could be cited almost indefinitely.

While increasing in a tremendous proportion her expenses, Germany has voluntarily omitted to increase her taxations. There was one German statesman, Erzberger, who tried to take the matter seriously in hand and raise considerably the taxation. But he was opposed by the most powerful influences from the parties of the Right to the so-called "Volksparlei," by Heiberich as well as by Stinnes. It may be said, on the whole, that Erzberger failed. Moreover, he was murdered like Rathenau. The rate of taxation has been kept considerably lower in Germany than it is in England or in France. The case of indirect taxations is particularly striking. Duties on beer, tobacco, spirits, etc., are four or five times less in Germany than in France.

Those, and not the payments for reparations, are the main causes of the collapse of German currency. But the economic condition of a country—and this is a very important fact—cannot be measured by its currency only. While the mark has gone down, the economic power of Germany, its productive possibilities, the discipline and seriousness of its working people, its gift for organization, remain unaltered. All these capacities may very soon become a source of considerable wealth. On the whole, the riches of Germany are far greater than the riches of France. Modern industry depends upon coal. It is true that Germany has lost a good deal of coal by the Treaty of Peace. But in the Ruhr Valley alone she has about 200,000,000 tons of coal, many times as much as France. Germany has no external debt. Her internal debt is in proportion less than the internal debt of France.

If one considers all these facts, which cannot be denied, the question is not how much could Germany pay, but how much would Germany be willing to pay.

CANADIAN DOLLAR PARITY DUE TO U. S.

The comeback of the Canadian dollar to par has attracted much attention. Those who understand the conditions believe that, aside from the fundamentally good condition of Canadian finance and business generally, together with an improvement in its trade position, the restoration of parity has been due very largely to American investments, purchases and spending in Canada. American money has been going into things Canadian at the rate of $20,000,000 a month this year.

Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and general manager of the Bank of Montreal, says: "Return of the dollar to par is simply a question of supply and demand. It is not the balance of trade alone that has brought New York exchange back to par, but an influx of extraneous money."

E. L. Pease, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, says: "The return of the Canadian dollar to par is a wonderful tribute to the demand. Look at countries in the South, like Brazil and Argentina. Their currency is not yet approaching anything like normal. Our proximity to the United States has helped us largely. Americans are investing heavily in the Dominion, making this country an export center for distribution of their goods to other parts of the Empire and thus benefiting by lower tariffs within the Empire. Take, for example, Ford and General Motors; such investments bring much American money into Canada."

THE LAW THE PEOPLE'S BEST GUARDIAN.

At the American Bar Association convention in San Francisco, there was a demand for a better understanding of the laws as the guardian and defender of the people and the champion of equal rights for all. There is need of such understanding to replace present distrust and contempt for law, but it can only be arrived at through co-operation to make the law trustworthy.

Only as statutes are well devised and promptly and honestly executed will they be a defense to any people or protect the rights of all of them equally. Those having these matters in charge must adhere to the highest standards of integrity and intelligence.

In turn, those who need the law's protection must not only be encouraged and justified in seeking it, they must be taught their share of responsibility in making it worth seeking. They must understand more fully that the choosing of the men who make and administer the statutes rests with them, and that as they choose good men or bad men, these will be a protection or the reverse. Respect for and obedience to the laws of the land must be the rule, too, or the best of laws will fail to protect. Any citizen can easily find plenty of illustrations by looking around for them.

THE DOWNFALL.

For many years Tobias Tarr looked like a plutocrat; he drove a large and costly car, and wore a stovepipe hat. As he was married to my niece, I felt impelled to say, "This princely lavishment must cease, or you'll go broke some day. The coin you earn from week to week is all you have in view, and you the bill collectors seek, to spring accounts long due. Oh, prithee heed this rede of mine, for I am old and sane, and put some doubloons down in brine, against the day of rain. And failing this some day you'll come a humbled, cringing gent, to ask of me a goodly sum, that you may pay your rent." His laughter rumbled through his beard, with merriment he roared, and hothouse fruit that day appeared upon his groaning board. There came a strike, and weary men lined up in jobless ranks, and scarcely one in twelve or ten had money in the banks. Tobias in a week was broke, and started pawning things; oh, it was sad to see him soak his car and wedding rings. His shirts of silk, that cost eight bones, brought fifty cents a throw; his phonograph, of golden tones—he had to let it go! Tobias struts around no more, he is a shrunken man; and now and then he seeks my door, to borrow what he can. Some quavers in his accents lurk, as he remarks, "Oh, chee, if ever I get back to work, the precious plunks won't flee!"

Today's Talk

by George Matthew Adams

YOU PEOPLE

The inspiration which I derive from the letters of those who are helped by these daily Talks is largely the reason why they appear each day.

The other day I received a letter from a great book lover who is now 84 years of age—and a delightful letter it was. A ranch owner in the South asks me to come out and see him when I am in his vicinity. A little girl out West wants to have me come in sometime to their home and eat "fried chicken and hot biscuits" with them.

Another reader has offered to "feed me up" on maple sugar, which I must confess is my favorite dish! And from Pennsylvania I have a letter which is framed and hangs in my office, from "Only a Farmer" telling me that he would like to have me drop in and have a meal at his farm if I am ever near him.

Maple sugar, fried chicken, a real farm dinner. Whose month wouldn't water at such suggestions—and whose souls wouldn't warm at the thought of accepting all of these thoughtful invitations?

The other day I had a birthday—and scores of letters came to me and made me happy that I did have a birthday now and then. In time I try to answer all these kind expressions with a "Thank You." But some are unsigned. So to those I can only publicly say "Thank you."

But, to You People, as a whole, I wish to acknowledge your beautiful thoughtfulness and to say I wish knew you all and COULD drop in at will for a chat, or a meal—or a romp!

You People are all that really count after all, in this big world. And please remember that I am one of you!

At this season of the year few women can display pretty elbows. The informality of the summer frock (though its aim is that of comfort) leaves the arms so exposed that, along with the problem of the tanned and freckled skin, comes the begrimed and roughened elbow.

This year in particular the arm and consequently the elbow, has been more exposed than usual, since sleeves have been either short or very wide and loose flowing, leaving the arm bared most of the time. A continuance of this vogue means that arms can no longer be hidden as they have been other seasons, and that the elbow that did not offend in the plain summer dress, would look coarse when revealed through the slashes or vagaries in the sleeves of dresses made from rich materials. Fashion, therefore has imposed upon us the necessity of beautifying the elbow this season.

The woman with the nicely rounded arm will have little trouble as the soft tissue surrounding the elbow has protected it. The woman whose elbows protrude will find that the elbow is harsh and dry, while the color of the skin is often an ugly shade of grey or brown. Fortunately, the elbows respond to treatment in a short time, so a few weeks of care should

In very bad cases after massaging the elbows bind them up overnight with an oily rag over the hardened skin. In all cases close the pores after a treatment by using either ice or cold water.

Eleanore:—Do not try to dye your chestnut, brown hair jet black as the change would surely make your skin look swarthy. The natural shade of the hair is usually the one best suited to the complexion. There are some exceptions to this but not with such types as you describe.

Josephine:—Cucumbers make a handy bleaching lotion at this season. You will have good results even if you merely rub the skin with the juicy section of the cucumber.

Styles BY LENORE

A soft brown gray shade of Canton crepe is used for one of the most distinctive dresses in a new Fall collection displayed a few days ago. It is illustrated in the accompanying sketch, and shows how smart the severely plain bodice with high neck may be in combination with a long, tight sleeve. The small flaring cuff is a becoming finish. So is the long, uneven line of the skirt, which is typical of many of the new things shown. Green silk floss and metal are used to form the ornamental belt.

In other of the models embroidery was used to introduce a bit of gay color. Appliques of self-material with thread stitching and braid was used for the dresses made of cloth—the hemline in these tailored models being straight, as a rule.

THIRTY ARRESTED IN LIQUOR RAID NEAR SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, O., Sept. 11.—Thirty men and women, married and otherwise, were taken by the sheriff and police after 2 o'clock yesterday morning along the St. Paris pike, North of this city, while they were enjoying an alleged liquor party.

County Prosecutor Donald Kirkpatrick, who directed the raid, took the names of those who fell into the clutches of the officers, and refused to make them public although that will be done after affidavits are filed. He stated that most of the cases would be brought before the Juvenile Court, as part of the prisoners were girls "under age."

The men and women drove to the scene of the raid in automobiles, and it is alleged that they were conducting their party in abandoned cabins along Mad River. Prince Bullawa Citawayo, of Africa, Xenia's first representative of royalty, was greeted with a large audience at the Third Baptist Church Sunday evening, when he delivered an interesting discourse on "Paul's Great Fight."

The Prince's talk was along the lines of a regular sermon, his work as a tribal chieftain in South Africa being chosen as the subject of his address, "Possibilities of Educating and Christianizing Africa" at the church, Tuesday night.

The Prince was introduced by President Gregg of Wilberforce University, the audience including a number of educational leaders, including Bishop Lee, also of Wilberforce and others.

The Prince will speak Tuesday night at seven-thirty o'clock, and a cordial invitation is being extended to all the citizens of Xenia and the county to attend the address. Local music will be furnished at the meeting. Admission will be free, the doors of the Third Baptist Church where the meeting will be held to be opened at seven o'clock.

IRREGULARS SEEK REIGN OF TERROR

Dublin, Sept. 11.—By courier to London.—Many persons were killed and wounded in week end fighting in Dublin preceded by an attack by adherents of Eamonn DeValera, commander-in-chief of the Republican irregulars. At least six persons were killed and others wounded. Officials believe that the irregulars are trying to create a reign of terror.

The new cabinet is scheduled to meet Monday morning to consider an ultimatum to the rebels, warning them of more drastic action unless they surrender.

The daily council is to meet Monday afternoon to take up the case of extending the authority of the government for restoration of peace and ratification of the constitution.

Styles BY LENORE

A soft brown gray shade of Canton crepe is used for one of the most distinctive dresses in a new Fall collection displayed a few days ago. It is illustrated in the accompanying sketch, and shows how smart the severely plain bodice with high neck may be in combination with a long, tight sleeve. The small flaring cuff is a becoming finish. So is the long, uneven line of the skirt, which is typical of many of the new things shown. Green silk floss and metal are used to form the ornamental belt.

In other of the models embroidery was used to introduce a bit of gay color. Appliques of self-material with thread stitching and braid was used for the dresses made of cloth—the hemline in these tailored models being straight, as a rule.

THE MOST UNUSUAL ROAD IN THE WORLD

WEDNESDAY, June 28, will go down in the annals of good road building as the day on which Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania opened the "most unusual road in the world." Constructed upon the abandoned right of way of a railroad, its curves are the gentlest, and for many miles its grades are too slight to be detected by anything but a spirit level.

The most unusual road in the world connects Binghamton, N. Y., and Scranton, Pa., and forms a part of the highway from Buffalo and points west to New York, Philadelphia and New Jersey cities.

Pennsylvania and New York folks, who have pushed the project through against heavy obstacles, have named the highway the Lackawanna Trail. The name suggests not only the picturesque country through which the road passes, but also the abandoned roadbed of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad on which it is built.

It is this feature that makes the Lackawanna Trail unusual. It is built like a railroad, on a foundation accommodated to the swift rush of express trains. Its grades and curves are the easy fluctuations of a railroad. It invites an open throat and an unworried mind and an ear attuned to the purr of rubber rolling over asphalt.

It cost $5,000,000.

Three Governors Invited

In arranging a celebration that would be truly memorable, the citizens back of the project arranged the following program: A dinner at the Hotel Casey in Scranton the night of June 27; a sixty-two mile road run from Scranton to Binghamton the following day for a procession of 4,000 automobiles; luncheon at the Arlington Hotel, Binghamton; return to New Milford for open air exercises to which the governors of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York were invited, and finally a dinner in Scranton that evening.

On Railroad Right-of-Way

When the Lackawanna Railroad in 1912 projected its new "cut-off" line from Claris Summit to New Milford over a series of concrete viaducts which stand as one of the supreme engineering and artistic achievements of railroad builders there arose discussion as to what would become of the old roadbed. On August 1, 1914, a serious freight wreck occurred on the Lackawanna at Alford, Pa., and the road announced that the old line would be absolutely abandoned. It was then that the highway project came definitely into being.

Picturesque view of the trail where it passes beneath the great viaduct at Martin's Creek.

The International Correspondence Schools and Woman's Institute, two monumental buildings on the Scranton approach to the Trail.

It was discovered in 1916 that an old Pennsylvania statute made it impossible for the State Highway Department to take over railroad right-of-ways until five years after abandonment. In 1917 a bill was put through the Legislature nullifying the earlier statute, and from a legal standpoint the highway became a possibility.

Fifty-eight Donated Land

The offer of the Lackawanna Railroad to give the roadbed to the State Highway Commission did not provide an unobstructed right-of-way, for parts of the old line were held under titles which provided for reversion to the original owners in case the roadbed was abandoned. The fifty-eight names of those persons who gave their holdings under reversionary titles to the Highway Commission form the honor roll of the Lackawanna Trail. The Lackawanna Good Roads Association, now the Motor Club of Lackawanna County, was a powerful factor in clearing the right-of-way.

Construction on the road was started October 15, 1919, at Glen-burn Station and is just being completed. The road has a concrete base, surfaced with asphalt. The cost in some sections was very high, particularly a three mile stretch between Alford and New Milford.

Trail a Scenic Wonder

The scenic qualities of the route and its strategic location more than justify the cost, however. The great arches of the Lackawanna viaducts, sweeping into view at several points on the trail, enhance and eliven the natural beauty of the country traversed. The long, clean ribbon of the road, bridging valley and skirting mountain, suggests the masterpieces of highway construction which the Romans flung to the far corners of the Empire.

There is, of course, no question of the need of such a highway. It provides all northeastern Pennsylvania with an outlet for vehicular traffic. Absence of such a road held the region under a heavy handicap for years and kept thousands upon thousands of tourist cars away. Completion of the highway gives the motor owner of northeastern Pennsylvania a hard surface route from Scranton west to join the great highway system of New York State or east to the improved roadways of New Jersey. The motorists of that section now have a beaten path to the outside world and the tourists of the outside world into or through one of the oldest settled sections of the country. The volume of traffic which has already rolled over the completed portions during the fair days of spring and early summer evidences the response.

Typical stretch of the Lackawanna Trail. With its gentle curves and perfectly level roadbed, it betrays the railroad right-of-way on which it was constructed.

Section of the Trail completed for official opening on June 28 with a parade of 4000 automobiles.

San Francisco theater and was startled when she heard the voice of Franklin Pangborne, an actor, to learn he was her "dead" hero. She recognized the voice in spite of his make-up.

nounced that the old line would be absolutely abandoned. It was then that the highway project came definitely into being.

It was discovered in 1916 that an old Pennsylvania statute made it impossible for the State Highway Department to take over railroad right-of-ways until five years after abandonment. In 1917 a bill was put through the Legislature nullifying the earlier statute, and from a legal standpoint the highway became a possibility.

Fifty-eight Donated Land

The offer of the Lackawanna Railroad to give the roadbed to the State Highway Commission did not provide an unobstructed right-of-way, for parts of the old line were held under titles which provided for reversion to the original owners in case the roadbed was abandoned. The fifty-eight names of those persons who gave their holdings under reversionary titles to the Highway Commission form the honor roll of the Lackawanna Trail. The Lackawanna Good Roads Association, now the Motor Club of Lackawanna County, was a powerful factor in clearing the right-of-way.

Construction on the road was started October 18, 1919, at Glen-burn Station and is just being completed. The road has a concrete base, surfaced with asphalt. The cost in some sections was very high, particularly a three mile stretch between Alford and New Milford.

Trail a Scenic Wonder

The scenic qualities of the route and its strategic location more than justify the cost, however. The great arches of the Lackawanna viaducts, sweeping into view at several points on the trail, enhance and elven the natural beauty of the country traversed. The long, clean ribbon of the road, bridging valley and skirting mountain, suggests the masterpieces of highway construction which the Romans flung to the far corners of the Empire.

There is, of course, no question of the need of such a highway. It provides all northeastern Pennsylvania with an outlet for vehicular traffic. Absence of such a road held the region under a heavy handicap for years and kept thousands upon thousands of tourist cars away. Completion of the highway gives the motor owner of northeastern Pennsylvania a hard surface route from Scranton west to join the great highway system of New York State or east to the improved roadways of New Jersey. The motorists of that section now have a beaten path to the outside world and the tourists of the outside world into or through one of the oldest settled sections of the country. The volume of traffic which has already rolled over the completed portions during the fair days of spring and early summer evidences the response.

Typical stretch of the Lackawanna Trail. With its gentle curves and perfectly level roadbed, it betrays the railroad right-of-way on which it was constructed.

Section of the Trail completed for official opening on June 28 with a parade of 4000 automobiles.

DETROIT HAS GIRL "BURBANK"

Miss Claire E. Rieger, of Detroit, has grown some horticultural freaks that would give even Luther Burbank something to think about. Miss Rieger's specialty is a "horned tomato," several of which are to be displayed at the coming State Fair.

Miss Rieger explains that the only difference between Burbank and herself is that he knows why his pet plants act that way.

THIS MEETING "BEYOND THE GRAVE"

Miss Margaret Cornell was in France during the war as a Red Cross worker. In a hospital there she met a soldier, whom later she was informed had died of wounds. Recently she entered a

San Francisco theater and was startled when she heard the voice of Franklin Pangborne, an actor, to learn he was her "dead" hero. She recognized the voice in spite of his make-up.

BULGARIAN CABINET MINISTERS JAILED

One of the most remarkable trials in the history of Europe is being held in Sofia, Bulgaria, where eleven members of the Cabinet which plunged the nation into the World War on the side of Germany were placed on trial for their action. If found guilty they are liable to death.

Two of the Cabinet members who already have served sentences of more than two years are Lieutenant General Nikola Jekow, commander of the Bulgarian army during the war and for forty days Minister of War, and Major-General Kalin Nirdov, another of the military chiefs of the Cabinet.

AIR TRAVEL SAFEST KIND DECLARES AVIATOR WHO

SCOUTS BELIEF THAT GREAT DANGER IS ATTACHED

"Why do so many people have such a fear of air travel? That's easy to answer," said aviator C. O. Garrett, who spent considerable time in this city recently taking passengers on air flights. "About all people ever hear about airplanes is when one falls and smashes some one up. Naturally when people read so often of some kind of plane accident they think air travel is dangerous, especially when the aviators never take the pains to try to inform the public as to the percent of hazard.

"Is it any more dangerous than the automobile? I should say most emphatically not; in fact it is the safest way there is to travel. Compared with the number of flights made every day the per cent. of accidents is very small. Most people seem to feel that a person going up in a plane takes his life in his hands. His friends bid him goodbye almost with tears and the 'first trip' passenger usually has his will made before he starts. As a matter of fact he would be in no greater danger getting into an auto or starting away on a train.

"I know one good same pilot that has been flying six years and has never had an injury or injured a passenger. I know of another pilot who has been flying continually, winter and summer for seven years without injury to himself or any passenger. In 1921 the Aeromarine Corporation operating in New York City, Atlantic City, Palm Beach, Miami, Fla., Havana, Cuba, Cleveland and Detroit flying 365 days carried over seven thousand passengers, flew over seven million miles, made every trip on scheduled time, except two days when delayed by heavy wind, and never injured a passenger and never had an accident. That sure looks safe to me. But, of course the papers never hear about the safe flights because the 'news' is always in the wrecks.

"People hear about a plane wreck and immediately get cold feet and all air travel. A whole party of people will be killed or injured in an auto or train wreck and everybody will pile into their machines and rush out to the scene of the wreck without ever a thought of being in danger themselves.

"Give me the air every time for safe travel," said the aviator. "The roads are jammed with all kinds of craft, going in different directions and jamming into one another. Up in the air you have the whole landscape to turn around in and nobody crowding you off the road. The accidents are largely due to darning on the part of the aviator, who tries some risky stunt, to negligence on the part of the aviator or mechanic in regard to the plane, or to the fact that the pilot is not in good physical condition and not able to handle the plane if it suddenly goes into a tail spin. Many of the accidents in the aviation during the war were due to the fact that every pilot was compelled to be a stunt pilot whether he liked the job or not.

"Taken by and large, air travel is the safest travel yet devised and by all odds the most enjoyable. Most people think they would be dizzy up at such a height and assure me that compelled to see the sea shore, the as they cannot endure going out on lakes and the higher altitudes to find scholastic teams "First time team went through season without defeat. Coach Katherman put together an eleven that scored 222 points to 7 for opponents. Boxwell, fullback; Oakley, center; Currie guard and captain-elect; Captain McCallister, quarter back; Lones and Randall, half-backs were excellent players."

FLIER IS KILLED; WOMAN

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 11--Gene G. Willard, St. Louis, Mo., civilian pilot, was killed instantly. Miss Vivian Johnson is in a hospital, slightly injured, and another young woman escaped injury when an airplane from Stinson Field, near here, crashed last night.

WOMAN TAKES NEWLY DISCOVERED

ASTHMA MEDICINE; VERY SEVERE

PAROXYSM SPEEDILY RELIEVED

Treating asthma, hay fever and bronchial troubles by Viora Asthma Compound is one of the speediest methods of obtaining relief from these most distressing ailments.

An example of the good this medicine is doing is shown in the statement recently made by Mrs. G. M. Hogan, 302 South Yellow Springs St., Springfield. Mrs. Hogan says:

"I am having less trouble this season with asthma and hay fever than I have had for years. Before I took Viora I would have spells of asthma that made me fight for my breath. I tried so many different kinds of asthma remedies without avail that I was discouraged. Most of them gave little relief and all of them upset my stomach."

"Not so however, with Viora. Viora gave me relief from the very start and furthermore, it is not hard on the stomach. If people really knew what quick relief they could obtain by taking Viora they would not hesitate to try it."

Thousands of people who have been as such a height and assure me that compelled to see the sea shore, the as they cannot endure going out on lakes and the higher altitudes to find relier from asthma and hay fever during the fall months, may now reside at home with every degree of confidence that they will not be bothered in many cases patients have testified that they have obtained more relief by using Viora Asthma Remedy than they have from the pine infected air of the upper lake regions.

Asthma, hay fever, rose fever, and catarrh act similarly upon the system; if any one of these ailments is allowed to continue for a number of years the patient is generally afflicted with all of them in the end. They are due to weakened membranes in the nasal and bronchial tracts. These membranes are easily irritated and made to swell by the pollen of rag weed in the fall and the rose bloom in the spring.

Treat the entire system by cleansing and purifying the blood is the theory upon which Viora Asthma Remedy acts as a general tonic and purifier. It possesses properties which go to the seat of the disease. Every bottle is sold on money back guarantee.

Viora Asthma Remedy may be obtained at Sohn's Drug Store.

MORROW NINE IS SERIES WINNER OVER ELECTRICS

Winning two out of three games by taking the third contest into camp Sunday at the Washington St. Park, the Morrow nine clinched the series with the Bayliff Electrics with a 7 to 4 victory.

In spite of the fact that the electricians outfit the usually hard slugging visitors, they were cut from the plate at crucial moments by fast in-fielding and with the exception of two innings, their hits were scattered at comfortable margins.

In the meantime the visitors took advantage of every opportunity to push a run across the plate, and they piled up a lead by dribbling along while the opportunities presented themselves. It was the third conflict between these two teams. The first game was won by Morrow in a slugfest, while the locals put the jinx sign on them, the last appearance. Fans turned out in large numbers for the rub-off contest Sunday and were treated to a hit and run affair, such as bring joy to the hearts of the bleachers.

The visitors scored first in the second inning when Cowden, first man up, stretched a single into a home run. He drove the ball into left where it was lost, and while the gardeners dug up the turf to find the horse, the visiting clatter cantered around the paths for the circuit. The freak home run aroused and enraged Bayliff's pets.

Opening their half of the same inning, Starkey singled through short and took second on a passed ball. Tucker was hit by a pitched ball and both advanced when Fuller died at first unassisted. Dixon whiffed but Franz surprised the inmates with a single to left, both Starkey and Tucker scoring. Frantz swiped second, Bocklet beat out an infield hit. Martin relayed to Lever as third to head off Frantz, and his peg was wild, the catcher scoring. Minnick picked Bocklet off second for third demise.

It began to look as if the locals were all to the merry until the visitors came to bat in the third. They jumped one run in the lead, by repeating the local stunt and swatting out three runs. Carroll walked, and Soth popped out to Weider. Cowden however singled to center, scoring Carroll and putting Cowden on first. Starkey then muffed Martin's blow. Cowden scoring and Cowden taking third, from where he scored on Jones scratch infield single. Westercamp threw out Minnick for the third out. The electrician tied the count again in their half, when Westercamp singled through second and then stole second. Weider popped out to Lever but Cooper singled, scoring Westercamp. Cooper took second on Starkey's single, but was trapped out between second and third, Cowden to Lever. Tucker was out at first but Starkey was safe at second on the elder's choice. Fuller fled out for the third one.

Morrow took the lead in the fifth Soth was safe on Bocklet's error, and Cowden fanned. Martin scratched a single to the box, Soth taking third, but was forced at second by Jones. Martin taking second, from where he scored when Westercamp muffed Minnick's roller. Weider tossed out Lever. The visitors got their last two in the eighth. Lever walked, and went to second on Carroll's single to right. Cowden forced Carroll at second. Lever taking third, and scoring with Cowden, when Tucker threw wild to get Cox at first. Soth was out, Bocklet unassisted and Cowden fanned. The locals tried to score in the eighth and ninth. In the eighth, Dixon singled to left, but was forced at second and Frantz doubled at first on the latter's roller. Lever to Cowden to Martin. Bocklet doubled immediately afterward and took third on a passed ball, but Westercamp fanned. In the ninth, Weider whiffed but Cooper doubled and Soth tossed out Starkey. Tucker singled to left, but Cooper was halted at third. Tucker stole second and Fuller walked, filling the bases. Dixon then fled out to Carroll for the third out.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Markets

STOCKS

Stocks continued their advance and showed a buoyant tone in the session immediately following Labor Day, cheered by settlement of the anthracite coal strike. The Dow and Jones average for 20 industrial stocks had previously passed the 100 mark. Clearly the market, which has all the aspects of a bull market, anticipates brisk activity in business during the fall and winter. Best opinion is that the advance will continue for some time, carrying a good many stocks above their true value and precipitating the inevitable reaction. Rising profits in industry will lure the amateur speculator into making heavy purchases when prices are near the peak. The professional meantime starts "taking profits."

GRAIN

Wheat prices are probably within a few cents of their lowest for the year, but may not recover until the peak of the spring wheat movement has passed. Export buying is from time to time a sustaining influence. Heat and drought are damaging corn over a wide area without a doubt and have created a little bullish sentiment in corn. Oats find some favor because of their low price and the farmer's apparent lack of desire to sell.

LIVESTOCK

Leadings of livestock during the four weeks ended August 12 showed little change from the year; previous, although larger in the Northwestern and Central Western districts. Cattle outside the grasser class, especially fat yearlings, have been recently at the season's highest level with stockers and feeders of fairly good quality in broad demand. The range cattle movement is growing, as is usual at this time of year. Hogs advanced after their slump. Packing grades remained in poor demand. Lamb trade showed a weak undertone despite light supply. Meat consumption has been well maintained, considering the number of men on strike. Railroad service is reported poor with loss in transit abnormal.

WOOL

Considerable wool changed hands during the last week in August despite the seasonal dullness of the market. Prices did not alter materially. Foreign markets are firm. Passage of the tariff by the middle of October is expected. Wool consumption during June compared well with that of May and of June the year before.

COTTON

The market had pretty thoroughly discounted the department of Agriculture's bullish condition report, published on September 1, which forecasted a total crop of little more than 10,500,000 bales. Condition declined during August much more than the ten-year average decline. The cotton trade expects domestic and foreign mills to require some 13,000,000 bales this season. The crop may suffer further deterioration before it is gathered and the carryover is not large. Hence there is reason to believe that prices will at least maintain their present level.

METALS

Operations in the iron and steel industry are slowly increasing now that the coal is settled, with the price average advancing. Steel billets, for example, have advanced $12 since January. It is by no means certain that production will reach the high level of Spring.

AGRICULTURE

Assuming the depletion of stocks during the present season the supply of tractors and agricultural implements during 1923 may not equal the "heavy and imperative demand," believes the Cleveland and Federal Reserve bank, which foresees a season of light manufacturing production, due to coal shortage, rail congestion, and the advancing prices of raw materials.

The bank makes an interesting review of the situation. The farmer's mechanical equipment ordinarily needs replacement every six or seven years, it reasons. During the five years prior to 1921 the farmer bought only about 70 per cent of his normal requirements, owing to the restriction on material to war uses and the subsequent shortage of materials and traffic conditions. At the same time he gave his implement unusually hard use. During 1920 to 1922 implement prices were high and then unsettled, and the farmer had little or no money. Consequently the implement business dropped to about 30 per cent of its normal proportions. The long delayed replacement of farm machinery will occur in 1923 the bank is led to conclude, forecasting a heavy demand.

Possibly the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank is exaggerating in its own mind the farmers' net returns from the 1922 crop. Certainly the farmer will not tolerate another cycle of price advances, attempted on the supposition that such is justified by the latent demand and by the difficulties which may or may not surround production.

MR. FALLON HEARS OF DONALD HORNE

Chapter 67

Nellie cherished no thought that her love for George Fallon could ever mean anything to her; that he did, or ever would return it. Her practical nature, her good common sense, that had kept her straight for so long prevented her. If she could hide her feelings for him she could keep her place, be near him. This was all she could hope for. But it meant, so much that she exerted all her will-power to conceal from him the love which had come to her, the love for him that had lain dormant until his accident.

Donald Horne realized something was wrong with Nellie but hesitated to question her. There was something in her manner, a look in her eyes that forbade. He tried in every little way he could think of to interest her unobtrusively showed his sympathy. But for Nellie he didn't exist. She thanked him for his flowers but in a perfunctory manner, very different from her usual grateful enthusiasm for a kindness. Then she kept out of his way as much as possible, going to her room the moment she finished her dinner.

For some time practically ever since the elder Mr. Fallon's absence Miss Jones had quietly—without saying anything to Nellie, but acting on Mr. George's advice,—been initiating her into the work she so long had been doing as his private secretary.

Nellie gave this no thought, beyond the feeling that she was getting on, and supposed when the elder Mr. Fallon came back she would again take her place in his office. Whenever she thought this her heart sank. Then she only saw Mr. George when he came in to consult with his father. Now she sat near him all day, where she could glance at him when he wasn't looking, where he often talked to her.

One morning after Mr. George had read his mail, Nellie heard him remark to Miss Jones: "Father has decided upon the advice of his doctor, to remain abroad for a year. He was preparing to retire when he became ill, so I shall feel no inconvenience as far as the business is concerned, although I shall miss his advice—our consultations."

"I am sure the business will not suffer, and I think him very wise," Miss Jones returned. "Many men go on until too late."

Nellie had turned pale and averted her head that they might not notice her emotion. Would there be no need of her if Mr. Fallon did not take an active part in the business? She longed desperately to say something, to find out in some way if she were to stay, but lacked the courage.

All day she was very quiet, her saucy answers to the other employees stilled.

"I couldn't bear it—not to be here," she said to herself as she typed rapidly. "I never knew loving hurt so—at times. But I'd rather love him and be hurt, than not love him."

It seemed to Nellie the day never would end. Then at three o'clock she hoped it wouldn't. Miss Jones went out, and she was alone with Mr. Fallon. Sitting beside him, taking dictation, prosaic enough, surely. Yet the day had suddenly become bright. She was for the once, happy.

After dictating a while, Mr. George leaned back in his chair and questioned her: Was she comfortable? Did she like the boarding house as well as she thought she would. Were the other boarders congenial?

He laughed merrily when she told him of Miss Pitt, of her remark the night she went to the theater—that she wasn't brought up to go gadding about alone with young men.

"And what did you say?"

"I expect I was rather impudent," Nellie answered, flushing. "I told her perhaps she might learn to now if they would ask her."

"You are very quick, Miss Nellie," her employer replied, laughing again. Then soberly: "This young man with whom you go to the theater—is he one of the boarders?"

"Yes, a newspaper man, and they all say he is a very nice fellow," an impulse dictating the answer. Mr. Fallon mustn't think no one was attracted to her. Yet she could not understand the look that swept his face—regret—indecision—a bit of sadness.

MORROW NINE IS SERIES WINNER OVER ELECTRICS

Winning two out of three games by taking the third contest, into camp Sunday at the Washington St. Park, the Morrow nine clinched the series with the Bayliff Electrics with a 7 to 4 victory.

In spite of the fact that the electrics outbit the usually hard slugging visitors, they were cut from the plate at crucial moments by fast in-fielding and with the exception of two innings, their hits were scattered at comfortable margins.

In the meantime the visitors took advantage of every opportunity to push a run across the plate, and they piled up a lead by dribbling along while the opportunities presented themselves. It was the third conflict between these two teams. The first game was won by Morrow in a slugfest, while the locals put the jinx sign on them, the last appearance. Fans turned out in large numbers for the rub-off contest Sunday and were treated to a big and run affair, such as bring joy to the hearts of the bleachers.

The visitors scored first in the second inning when Cowden, first man up, stretched a single into a home run. He drove the ball into left where it was lost, and while the gardeners dug up the turf to find the horsehide, the visiting clouter cantered around the paths for the circuit. The freak home run aroused and enraged Bayliff's pets.

Opening their half of the same inning, Starkey singled through short and took second on a passed ball. Tucker was hit by a pitched ball and both advanced when Fuller died at first; unassisted. Dixon whiffed but Franz surprised the inmates with a single to left, both Starkey and Tucker scoring. Frantz swiped second. Bocklet beat out an infield hit. Martin relayed to Lever at third to head off Frantz, and his peg was wild, the catcher scoring. Minnick picked Bocklet off second for third demise.

It began to look as if the locals were all to the merry until the visitors came to bat in the third. They jumped one run in the lead, by rapping the local stout and sweating out three runs. Carroll walked, and both popped out to Weider. Cowden however singled to center, scoring Carroll and putting Cowden on third. Starkey then muffed Martin's blow. Cowden scoring and Cowden taking third, from where he scored on Jones' scratch infield single. Westercamp threw out Minnick for the third out. The electrician tied the count again in their half, when Westercamp singled through second and then stole second. Weider popped out to Lever but Cooper singled, scoring Westercamp. Cooper took second on Starkey's single, but was trapped out between second and third. Cowden to Lever. Tucker was out at first but Starkey was safe at second on the fielder's choice. Fuller fled out for the third one.

Morrow took the lead in the fifth. Both was safe on Bocklet's error, and Cowden fanned. Martin scratched a single to the box, both taking third, but was forced second by Jones. Martin taking second, from where he scored when Westercamp muffed Minnick's roller. Weider tossed out Lever. The visitors got their last two in the eighth. Lever walked, and went to second on Carroll's single to right. Cowden forced Carroll at second. Lever taking third, and scoring with Cowden, when Tucker threw wild to get Cox at first. Both was out, Bocklet unassisted and Cowden fanned. The locals tried to score in the eighth and ninth. In the eighth, Dixon singled to left, but was forced at second and Frantz doubled at first on the latter's roller. Lever to Cowden. Cowden doubled and Fuller fled out to Carroll for the third out.

The Markets

STOCKS
Stocks continued their advance and showed a buoyant tone in the session immediately following Labor Day, cheered by settlement of the anthracite coal strike. The Dow and Jones average for 20 industrial stocks had previously passed the 100 mark. SCANDAL ENDS ENGAGEMENT OF COCA COLA KING

Mrs. De Bouchelle Claims
Character Assailed by Individual.

CANDLER IS SILENT Refuses to Divulge Names of Informants—Sales- man Talks.

Los Angeles, Oct. 11.—Wilbur Legett, traveling salesman of Atlanta, Ga., who identified himself as the third person in the shattered romance of Asa G. Candler, soft drink manufacturer of Atlanta, and Mrs. Onesima De Bouchelle, New Orleans society woman, today stood ready to return to his home to "defend the honor of an insulted woman in a manner such as becomes a southern gentleman."

"I am the traveling salesman mentioned by Mr. Candler and the whole story is a lie—a damnable lie," exclaimed Legett here today in commenting on dispatches stating that Candler had broken off his engagement to Mrs. De Bouchelle because a "report had been brought to him reflecting upon the character of his fiancée." Candler had said a traveling salesman was responsible for the broken romance.

"It's not the character of the woman. No, there is no finer on earth than she," declared Legett. "It's money—mad relatives of a man, who gives away a million dollars for a birthday present and religious fanatics, narrow minded, who abhor the marriage of opposite religious beliefs."

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 11.—Persistent refusal of Asa G. Candler, the aged millionaire, to divulge the name of the informant, who she charges with maliciously dragging her name through mud and fire, will bring proceedings to force the Coca Cola king to have the courts pluck the name from his unwilling lips. It was asserted today by Mrs. Onesima De Bouchelle, the New Orleans beauty, as she waited at her hotel the arrival from New Orleans of Harry Gamble, her attorney. This alone will be the motive back of any legal action which she may institute against the financier. She again insisted that she wanted not one penny of the Candler money.

Mrs. De Bouchelle said she had journeyed to Chattanooga several days ago, after Mr. Candler had telegraphed her at Reno, that "circumstances positively prevent my filling engagement with you on the 20th." All arrangements had been completed for the wedding to take place at 6 o'clock on the evening of Sept. 20, Mrs. De Bouchelle said. Mutual friends had obtained the promise of the only Methodist minister in Reno to remain over from a vacation in order to perform the ceremony in compliance with Mr. Candler's wishes.

On Friday before the dates set for the wedding she received Mr. Candler's first telegram stating his inability to fill the engagement. She then again planned to postpone it, as he had written her he was busily engaged in completing a bank merger and wanted to finish it before leaving on the Philippine honeymoon they had planned.

In a second telegram definitely breaking the engagement she said he stated that he was writing full particulars. The letter told of the charge which had been made against her character.

Then followed her efforts to have him give her the names of the informants, which he had steadfastly refused to do. With her attorney, Harry Gamble of New Orleans, she again made efforts to obtain the names of the men who accused her. Mr. Gamble came to Atlanta from Chattanooga last week and it was following his inability to obtain the names that Mrs. De Bouchelle came to Atlanta.

Mrs. De Bouchelle in her statement today, which followed the conference with Mr. Candler and his son Asa, Jr., said she could not understand the attitude of the capitalist. "I felt sorry for him," her statement read. "He told me he still loved me and wants to marry me and that he does not believe this hideous slander which has been taken to him, and yet he refused to give the name of the man or men who accused me."

"The statements of Mr. Candler's friends are utterly unfounded and untrue and I do not believe that they are even believed by him. At any rate, the first statement in his letters to me before I came to Atlanta accused me of receiving men in my room during the Confederate reunion here in 1919. This I disproved in the presence of Mr. Candler and his son. They then charged me with pleading with a traveling salesman to come and see me in my room at the Piedmont Hotel and only allowing him to leave me on his promise to come and see me in New Orleans."

Mrs. De Bouchelle said she would demand and "would have a retraction of slanderous charges against her character and the names of the persons responsible for their dissemination in Atlanta and elsewhere."

Mrs. De Bouchelle had a two hours' conference with Mr. Candler and his son, Asa, Jr., soon after her arrival here, Sunday from Chattanooga.

I. W. W. Moves To Take Part In Coming Election

Radicals and Liberals in 300 American Cities Called Upon to Compel Action to Effect Release of 72
"Wobblies."

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Radicals and liberals in 300 American cities were called upon by the I. W. W. today to compel action to effect the release of the 72 "wobblies" held in federal prisons as the remnants of war time offenders convicted under the espionage act and other war laws.

"Defeat candidates for congress in the November elections who are opposed to amnesty for political prisoners," was the I. W. W. appeal.

It was the first move of the I. W. W. organization in the present congressional campaign.

"President Harding has failed to keep the promise he made us on July 19 that he would review the cases of all political prisoners within sixty days," the appeal said. "He agreed also that he would liberate every man who was found to be actually held for opinions. We must bring pressure to bear to compel action."

Radicals were urged to take the stump against candidates opposed to amnesty, to organize amnesty demonstrations a day or two before election day; to hold big parades and to enter the political campaign in every conceivable manner, using correspondence, the telephone and, if possible, even the radio.

John Grady, successor to William D. ("Big Bill") Haywood, and head of the I. W. W. said he believed his organization would effect a tremendous influence in the campaign.

Fewer Dollars To Be Spent On Political Campaigns

Both Party Organizations Nearly Broke With Little Money Coming Into Coeffers, It Is Said—Poverty
Faced All Around.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Notwithstanding the fact there are no legal restrictions upon the amount of money that may be expended for campaign purposes this fall, it is entirely probable according to party leaders in Washington, that far less dollars will be spent in this 1922 congressional election by both Republican and Democratic parties than in any campaign in recent years.

It is no sudden attack of political conscience that has decreed this state of affairs—it is necessity and grim, cold poverty. Both Republican and Democratic national organizations are broke—at least badly bent.

While leaders display a disinclination to talk publicly about the state of party finances, privately they declare that organization funds are lower now than they have ever been at this stage of the game, with collections coming slower and slower.

Sources of rumors that could always be counted upon in the past produced more dribbles this fall where they have not dried up altogether. A variety of reasons are ascribed—high taxes, dissatisfaction with congress and its work, the recent business and industrial depression, and above all pronounced apathy on the part of old time contributors as to which party controls the 68th congress.

The Republican have fared a little better than the Democrats in the matter of securing funds, it was learned today but neither party has witnessed checks rolling in with their oldtime profusion.

Senator Medill McCormick, Republican of Illinois and Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts chairmen of the senatorial campaign committee have had scanty looking financial bulrushes for weeks, but it has been slow work and not very productive according to reports to headquarters. Both senators have given their personal services toward securing contributions.

In this situation it will devolve upon the candidates themselves to largely finance their own shows, it was said by leaders.

"What money can be expended by the national organizations this fall probably will be spent in sending speakers of national repute into the states of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Iowa, Nebraska and a few other states where the senatorial contests are especially keen."

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR ARGUMENT ON TAX PROPOSAL

To Take Up Appeal From
Action of Lower Court.

Columbus, Oct. 11.—The State Supreme Court tomorrow is to hear oral argument in connection with the appeal of Attorney M. E. Thraillkill, Columbus, from the action of the Franklin County Appellate Court restricting the decree of Common Pleas Judge Kinkadee who enjoined Secretary of State Smith from placing on the November ballot the proposed debt limitation and taxation amendments to the state constitution.

The case involves the controversy as to whether the use of indelible pencils constitute compliance with the provision of the state constitution that signatures to petitions, under the initiative and referendum, must be signed in ink.

The Supreme Court's determination of this question will decide, it is said whether votes cast at the November election for and against these proposals and the proposed beer light wines amendment to the state constitution will be counted.

ORDER GREEKS OUT OF THRACE: TROUBLE OVER

Turks Accept Allied Terms
For Settlement of Problem.

CRISIS IS OVER Allies to Assist Greece to Evacuate Constantinople.

London, Oct. 11.—The Greek government was formally notified today that the allied proposals regarding Thrace are in effect, requiring the Greeks to begin evacuating all Thrace east of the Maritza river immediately.

Up to noon no official word concerning the signing of the Near East armistice agreement at Mudania had been received from General Sir Chas. Harrington, British commander in chief at Constantinople. However, word had been received from other channels that the Turks had accepted the allies terms in whole.

That the British government regards the Near East crisis as past was shown by the fact that Premier Lloyd George left for his country estate this morning. He was in a jolly, optimistic frame of mind and evidently had received good news.

The Mudania pact is effective within 72 hours.

Now comes final arrangements for the Near East peace conference which is to be held at Scutari.

It is believed that practically all the Greeks will be out of Constantinople and eastern Thrace by the first of November as the allies will assist the Athens government in evacuating them.

London, Oct. 11.—The armistice agreement signed by the allies and the Turks at Mudania is purely of military character and has nothing to do with the Near East peace conference which is to follow, according to the following statement made today by Rechad Bey, envoy of the Turkish nationalists in London:

"The agreement signed by Gen. Sir Charles Harrington, the British Near East commander, and Ismet Bey is a military convention; nothing else. When the main conference comes Turkey will not agree to any foreign troops maintaining a garrison on the Turkish straits nor foreign warships controlling the straits. The Turks will insist upon participation in the conference by Russia and the republic of Georgia."

The British insist upon the right to maintain a garrison at Chanak, upon the Dardanelles, such as they now have at Gibraltar. The British have a fleet of about 30 warships in the Dardanelles, sea of Marmora and Bosphorus at present.

I. W. W. MUST PAY LEADERS' BONDS

Chicago, Oct. 11.—It will cost the I. W. W. $29,000 because William D. Haywood, their former leader, and eight other "reds" jumped their bonds and went to Russia, it became known today. That was the amount of the bonds signed in behalf of the I. W. W.

The total amount of the bonds forfeited through the flight of Haywood and his companions was $80,000. The government is taking steps to collect the full amount this week.

HEALTH COMMITTEE POSTPONES TRIP

Dr. A. D. DeHaven, City Manager S. O. Hale, and City Solicitor J. A. Finney, composing the committee appointed by the health commission to investigate the health department at Sidney, and to find out how much money is available for an adequate health department in Xenia, were unable to go to that city Wednesday owing to the death of Dr. DeHaven's mother.

The trip to Sidney was contemplated owing to the fact that Shelby County and Sidney are about the same size the city and county together spending from $11,000 to $12,000 yearly for their health department.

Due to the inability of the committee making the trip a report will not be submitted to the regular meeting of the city commission Thursday night. City Manager Hale says he will not appoint a city health commissioner at that time, but will do so as soon as possible. The trip to Sidney will take place in the near future. The resignation of Dr. Grube will not become effective until a new health officer is appointed. Mr. Hale has only one applicant for the position, a physician from out of the city who will not be an applicant if the salary remains the same as it has been, $500 a year.

DEPARTURE DELAYED.

London, Oct. 11.—Sir Robert Horne, chancellor of the exchequer, who will head the British debt funding mission to the United States to arrange for payment of the British war debt, it was announced today. He will leave later in the month.

MOB VIOLENCE THREATENS TO ECLIPSE MURDER OF MINISTER AND WOMAN IN NEW JERSEY

Deputy Sheriff Attacked By Crowd Incensed at Failure to Solve Mystery in New Brunswick — Bloodstained Basket Found Which May Lead to More Arrests.

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 11.—The finding of a bloodstained basket near the scene of the murder of Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall, wealthy rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist and Mrs. James Mills, beautiful choir leader, led to a report today that one or two more arrests were expected soon. Public opinion is growing that the authorities will not be able to prove the charge of first degree murder that has been lodged against Clifford Hayes, 19 year old boy, who was accused by his chum, Raymond Schneider, of shooting the clergyman, and his companion in mistake for two other persons.

The basket was discovered in a gully not far from the spot where the bodies were found beneath a stunted crab apple tree on the Phillips farm, two miles from the city. It was an ordinary chip basket of bushel size and contained a quantity of paper and rags stained with blood and covered with finger prints. It appeared as though some one had wiped his fingers upon the paper and rags.

Persons who saw the basket have been summoned before the county authorities today to tell their stories. Four men and a woman, who requested that their names be withheld, saw the basket. Among them was a physician who said he was certain that the red markings were made by blood.

ACCUSED OF SLAYING PASTOR

Pearl Bahner, & Raymond Schneider.

Two more arrests have been made in the case—Pearl Bahner, 15-year-old girl with whom Clifford Hayes and Raymond Schneider were in love, and her father, Nicholas Bahner. The girl and Schneider "discovered" the bodies and gave the first report of it to the authorities.

Somerset County detective George Totten declared today that Mrs. Hall, widow of the slain clergyman, would be questioned again.

A new line of inquiry has developed involving a woman not connected either with the Hall or Mills families. This woman is suspected of harboring a jealous resentment and if it is found that suspicion against her is justified Hayes will be released. As the matter stands at present Hayes is held for the grand jury upon the unsupported story of his pal, Raymond Schneider, who was jealous of attentions passing between Hayes and Pearl Bahner. Public dissatisfaction of the inability of the authorities to clear up the mystery found vent early today in a mob attack upon Deputy Sheriff Frank P. Kirby.

Kirby is reputed to have followed Hayes and Schneider for two weeks after the murder, finally getting the statement from Schneider which resulted in Hayes' arrest.

When Kirby was attacked he took refuge in the Pennsylvania railroad ticket office barring the door.

The mob outside clamored for admission, the ring leaders shouting, "You are the man who framed Cliff Hayes. We are going to get you."

Kirby ultimately rescued by the police. Another mob threatened to tar and feather a newspaper photographer for making a picture of Hayes' mother.

Public opinion is running very high here and it is feared that the original crime will result in more lawbreaking unless it is cleared up immediately.

BOX OF PAPERS IS SOUGHT IN POMEROY FINANCIAL CASE

Alleged "Woman Ponzi"
Says She Can Clear
Up Mystery.

Pomeroy, O., Oct. 11.—"Why don't you bring that box from home with my papers?" demanded Mrs. Susan Kraus, 68, held in jail on a charge of embezzlement and said by officials to have received more than $400,000 for investment from Pomeroy, Columbus and other friends, today. "If I only had those papers I could clear up everything."

Armed with full instructions of officers again searched the Kraus home but with faint hopes of success, as a complete search had been made previously.

This statement was the first intimation from the mouth of the white haired, fragile prisoner, that she would be able to clear up the mystery of the money received in the past twelve years for investment at rates ranging from 10 to 30 percent. "Everybody is down on us now, but if I can get those papers, everything will be all right," she asserts.

Three elderly ladies, one from Zanesville and the others from Springfield, were among the witnesses examined by the grand jury late yesterday. This led to the report that the grand jury probe when completed would reveal creditors in all parts of the state.

"I believe we will be able to learn where most of the money that was borrowed went," Prosecutor L. Gray Davis said today as the investigation was resumed.

President indications point to the completion of the probe late this week.

PERIL OF RAIL STRIKE IS NOW BELIEVED PAST

Nation-wide Walkout of
"Big Four" Brotherhoods
Averted.

AGREEMENT IS MADE
No Further Trouble Anticipated Declares Grand
Chief Stone.

Cleveland, Oct. 11.—Danger of nation-wide strike of members of the "big four" railroad brotherhoods, such as threatened the nation last October, was definitely at an end today with announcements by W. G. Lee, president of the brotherhood of railroad trainmen, and Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, that working arrangements which have been in effect between their organizations were at an end, and that in the future the trainmen and conductors on one hand and the engineers and firemen on the other would settle their own differences with the railroads without regard to the others.

Separate negotiations with the railroads providing for the renewal of wage and working conditions contracts have been in progress now for some months, with the trainmen and conductors acting separately, and in most instances successful in securing a renewal of the present contract without regard to their former labor associates or the railway labor board.

Thus the engineers and firemen have contracted with only one railroad—the Pennsylvania—while Grand Chief Stone said today that no trouble was anticipated in a renewal of other contracts.

The break between the leaders of the "big four" considered for years the strongest force in the railroad unions was first forecast last October when it was revealed that the refusal of Mr. Lee to go along with the other labor leaders on plans for a nation wide transportation strike and no, the threat of the railroad labor board to jail the leaders, averted the strike scheduled for that time.

Again last summer during the shopmen's strike divergent policies were in evidence. President Lee refused to countenance strikes of trainmen because of conditions arising from the walkout of union shopmen, while Mr. Stone and Mr. Robertson of the firemen served notice on the railroads that they would support their men if they refused to move trains where armed guards were used at the yards, or where inefficient help had rendered the engines unsafe.

U. S. HOLDS KEY TO DEBT SITUATION DECLARES CONGRESSMAN FROM OHIO

Washington, Oct. 11.—Complete readjustment of the $11,000,000,000 allied debt cannot be worked out as long as the United States continues to hold one half of the world's available gold supply, Rep. Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, member of the American Debt Funding Commission told the International News Service today.

Burton said it was anticipated that part of the enormous gold reserve held by this country would be gradually returned to Europe as private banking interests arranged for the floating of international loans from time to time and payments in gold were made for European goods imported into the United States, as well as for European securities purchased by American investors.

Senator McKinley of Illinois, a member, like Burton, of the American congressional delegation to the recent interparliamentary union conference at Vienna, pointed out that the total value of the world's available gold supply was approximately $7,000,000,000 or $4,000,000,000 less than the aggregate amount of the allied debt. The debt problem is not one of cancellation but of collection, McKinley stated, and the way to solve it is not by the United States hanging onto half the gold in the world. Neither could the debt be liquidated with such goods as would mean the closing of American factories and a paralysis of American industry. There must be a gradual reapportionment of gold reserves and a decided stoppage of the printing press currency of certain European nations if international bankruptcy were to be avoided.

The plain intimation was conveyed by other Republican senators closely associated with the administration that congress, after it reconvenes for the regular session starting in December probably would be asked to authorize:

1—Greater elasticity for the American debt funding law which would permit an extension of payments beyond the 25 year period now established by it.

2—American representation on the reparations commission in connection with the entire world war debt situation as well as the American agreement for the receipt of reparations duestuffs as part payment of Germany's bill for the maintenance of American troops on the Rhine.

REV. W. A. THOMAS TO GIVE ALASKAN TALK IN XENIA SUNDAY

Rev. W. A. Thomas, former pastor of Christ Episcopal Church of this city, who with Mrs. Thomas has spent the past six years among the Eskimos at Point Hope, Alaska, will give an illustrated lecture at the Episcopal Church, Xenia, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Thomas' talk will be upon the country where he and his wife have worked among the Eskimos and will describe conditions there, and relate experiences that have the ring of adventure and romance in a country far from civilization.

Mr. Thomas is on a year's leave of absence from his work in Alaska, where he served as missionary of the Episcopal Church and also as a U. S. Commissioner for the region. Early this year Mr. and Mrs. Thomas made the long trip from Point Hope down the coast by sled, a distance of 1,000 miles in the dead of winter, on their way back home. They will remain in the United States until November or December when they will begin their long trip back into the Arctic Circle.

During his months away from Alaska Mr. Thomas has been lecturing on the northern country and his swing brings him to Xenia Sunday evening. He will appear at the Old Barn Club in Dayton later in the month.

When the couple returns to Alaska they will be accompanied by their young son, Thomas, Theodore Katakah, who was born in Esanaba, Mich., in August. His middle name Katakah, an Eskimo word meaning "bird" proclaims his connection with the north country, where his father and mother have spent several years ministering to the spiritual and physical needs of the Eskimos.

Mrs. Thomas was before her marriage, Miss Ruth I. Ward of Manistique, Mich. During the war she served as an army nurse in France and later as a member of the medical staff of the Alaskan mission she met Mr. Thomas and their marriage followed.

When the time came for Mr. Thomas to make the winter round of the coast stations, following their marriage, Mrs. Thomas decided that she would accompany him. No white woman had ever mushed so great a distance upon the Arctic coast, but there was no doctor nearer than Point Barrow, 400 miles away and many of the Eskimos and Indians of the interior had never known what it was to have medical attention.

The trip proved a trying one fraught with many dangers, but Mrs. Thomas stood it successfully and thereafter she took upon herself the medical and sanitary oversight of that desolate coast. Wherever her husband went to carry spiritual blessing she went to give medical aid and advice. In all his journeys by dog sled, and snow shoes have totalled close to 10,000 miles.

It will be of these trips and experiences that the missionary will talk Sunday night in this city. Stereoscopic slides will supplement the lecture, which is said to be a remarkable portrayal of the life and conditions in that country.

EMMICH INDICTED BY U. S. GRAND JURY

Cincinnati, Oct. 11.—Clifford C. Emmich, former associate of George Remus, convicted "bootleg king" has been indicted by the federal grand jury for failing to make out an income tax return in 1920 and for perjury in his return for 1921. It is charged that he gave his income for last year as $3,646 when in reality it was more than $12,000. Investigations leading up to the indictment followed filing of a suit by Emmich against Remus for $10,000 which he claimed to have loaned the notorious bootlegger in a commercial transaction. This matter was mentioned in Emmich's tax return and the suspicions of the revenue inspectors were aroused.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache often means you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. An excess of meat may form uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia water drink. Drink lots of soft water.

Business The Fidelity Service & Adjustment Co., of Dayton, Ohio, a corporation organized to render a service to the automobile tire user and tire dealer. On January 1, 1922, practically every automobile tire manufacturer released their mileage guarantee on tires, which at the best was a makeshift and the cause of endless friction between the car owner and dealer, because the man who had a just complaint was generally the one who was not taken care of.

The Policy Of the Fidelity Service & Adjustment Co. is a clean-cut one, without any strings. With a Fidelity Policy a man is receiving a full year's protection against everything that might happen to a tire. The Fidelity Company is the only company offering this service and the idea, together with the advertising and the name, is copyrighted and registered. In the United States there are 80,000 exclusive tire dealers, each an ultimate user of Fidelity Service. These dealers distribute 200,000 tires every day, every buyer of which is a prospect. How many propositions have you heard of that presents such a field?

MARRIAGE IN SOUTH CHARLESTON OF INTEREST

Of interest to many friends in this city, was the marriage of Miss Jane Colvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chase Colvin of South Charleston, to Mr. Walter Smith March, of Coshocton, Ohio, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, at three thirty o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Dr. J. K. Gibson, of Dayton, Ohio, who also presided at the marriage of the bride's parents, twenty-five years ago.

The ceremony took place before an archway covered with vines and white garden flowers of the season.

The bride's gown was of ivory tulle chignon veiled with a veil of tulle held in place by a band of exquisite rose point lace. Her only ornaments were a beautiful diamond pin, the gift of the bridegroom, and a narrow gold band ring, which was her great grandmother's wedding ring. Her bridal bouquet was of pink and white roses and valley lilies in the shower. It was unique in that it was formed of three parts, one part containing a ring, another a thimble and the third a coin. As the bride ascended the stairway after the ceremony her bouquet was divided and caught by three of her friends.

Miss Edith Colvin attended her sister as maid of honor, dressed in a pink canton crepe dress trimmed in silver lace and silver ribbon. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of pink roses and fern.

The guests were received by the brides mother, Mrs. Chase Colvin, who wore a blue canton crepe dress, beautifully beaded and embroidered and Mrs. W. W. March, the bridegroom's mother, who wore a brown dress elaborately embroidered.

Mr. C. Palmer Meredith of Springfield, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

The bridal couple graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University with the class of 1920. Mr. March is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and of the Phi Beta Kappa honorary scholastic fraternity. He was business manager of the Ohio Wesleyan Transcript and was elected to the honorary journalistic fraternity, Phi Delta Epsilon. Mrs. March was president of the Clinton Literary Society and a member of the Student Council. Since leaving school Mr. March has been employed as an assistant National Bank Examiner.

After a wedding trip in the east, the couple will go to Oakmont, Pa., where they will be at home after October 25.

LIBRARY FUND MAKES POSSIBLE MANY NEW BOOKS, REPORT FOR YEAR SHOWS; LOCAL CLUBS LEND ASSISTANCE

Patrons of the Greene County Library are steadily receiving increased benefit from money donated to the Library Board, by the members of the Woman's Clubs of the city, who sponsored benefit performances during the past winter to raise the amount.

The money amounting to $592.46 raised by the home talent plays presented by the Catherine Greene Chapter D. A. R., the Senior Woman's club the Junior Woman's Club, and the Xenia Woman's Club, was used by the Library Board to meet the expenses of the Library. As the expenses connected with the undertaking amounted to only $23.55 many books will be acquired through this fund, $391.45 of which has been loaned at six per cent for the past six months, according to the report of Mrs. Karl R. Babb, secretary of the Library Board.

The officers of the Library Board for the year were, Miss Bertha Trebein, president; Mrs. S. O. Hale, vice president; Mrs. Karl R. Babb, secretary. The following committees served during the year, Magazine, Mrs. S. O. Hale; County, Mrs. Howard Little; Mrs. H. H. Eavey, Mrs. Austir M. Patterson, and Mrs. C. L. Darlington, Jr.; Efficiency, Mrs. R. The yearly report of Mrs. Babb shows that the Board of Governors met in session twelve times during the past year, and that at each meeting great interest and enthusiasm was manifested and a Book Order made up. "Splendid books of all kinds have been placed on our shelves," Mrs. Babb's report reads, "many copies having been donated among which were 'Victoria,' 'Marooned in Moscow,' 'Roosevelt's Letters to His Children,' and 'Emerson How to Know Him,' the gift of Miss Ewing, a former Board member." The attendance of the Board meetings according to Mrs. Babb, increased so that an average of 9.5 was met, compared to 7.4 of last year and 5.75 two years ago.

Local Democrats are arranging to meet Mr. Sandles and Mr. Julian when they come here from Columbus Thursday morning and the first meeting will be held at Jamestown at two o'clock Thursday afternoon. The speakers will then be asked to address meetings at Cedarville, Yellow Springs, the latter meeting at 3:30 o'clock and at Springfield at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. It will be the first appearance of state speakers here in the interests of either party's fall campaign.

"Put" Sandles was formerly head of the state agricultural department, and had his papers not been improperly filed while he was away from home, he would have been a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor this fall. As it was his name was kept off the ticket. W. Alexander Julian, is a wealthy Cincinnati shoe manufacturer and is a son-in-law of the late William Means, of Yellow Springs, former Mayor of Cincinnati. He was defeated by Frank B. Willis in the campaign for U. S. Senator two years ago.

Local Democrats will escort the speaker to the different meetings in Greene County, but there will be no meeting in Xenia at this time.

THEFT IS REPORTED.

Frank Cresswell, of Cedarville, reported to Springfield police Tuesday that his coat, valued at $25 was stolen from his auto while parked on South Limestone street, near Main Street, on the night of September 28.

HARDING PLEASED WITH THE NEW TARIFF.

To persons who would like to know how the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Act is operating President Harding has a ready response. He begins by chuckling. Then he says he does not know precisely how things are going at the Custom House, although the reports to the Treasury Department have been reassuring. Thus far there has been no evidence of the universal price advances in life's necessities forecast so glibly by the Democrats in the Senate. Then he smiles a little wider and recites the fact that it ought to be a pretty good sign for a Republican tariff when a delegation from Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas calls at the White House to tell a Republican President what a fine thing it was to enact the law. That sort of sentiment is new in Dixie.

GENERALSHIP OF BEST ORDER.

The Republican party's endorsement of the Harding administration and adoption of its record as basis for claims to the electorate's continuing support, which are already nationwide and are steadily and rapidly increasing in number and emphasis show that party leaders estimate its everlengthening list of high achievements at their real value. From the Atlantic to the Pacific, primary results have registered approval. State conventions in practically every section of the country have given enthusiastic endorsement. And Republican organizations throughout the nation are vying with each other in voicing wholehearted approbation. This is generalship of best order. The administration's record is a campaign asset of superlative value because it is a national asset of such value. Its achievements have been in the open—in plain view of the people. Its record is a record of high service in the public's cause.

THE WONDERFUL BANKERS CONVENTION IN NEW YORK CITY.

The final day of the forty-eighth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association was devoted most entirely to entertainment. The Executive Committee met on board the Washington Irving on the bankers' trip from New York City up to West Point. A golf dinner closed the program.

Final figures showed 11,503 persons registered for the convention. Only two conventions in the United States have surpassed the bankers' gathering in attendance, those of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in 1916, with 20,000 delegates, and the Christian Endeavor Society last year, with 16,000 delegates.

The out-of-town delegates numbered 3,633. There were 2,796 women guests from outside the city and 1,502 men guests. New York City sent 238 delegates. The registration from the city was 3,572, of whom 1,806 were women guests and 2,028 men guests.

John E. Puelicher, of Milwaukee, new president of the association, gave this appreciation of New York's hospitality: "I was greatly impressed during the convention with the infinitude of details and the elaborate machinery of organization that was necessary to make it a success. It is no simple task to entertain over 11,000 guests and not overlook a single opportunity for making them feel at home, making them know that your welcome is a real one and giving them an opportunity to see your city in all of its most amazing phases. Everybody had a good time."

THE TURK AND AMERICA.

In his reply to Bishop Cannon's plea that America shall act to end Turkish outrage and massacre of Christians in the Near East, Secretary Hughes voiced the mood of the hour and the present feeling in America. These massacres are hideous and terrible; but this country is not moved to go to war to end them. America deplores these outrages, and Americans are being stirred to a slow anger by their continuance. However, it is certain that today America would resent any move toward armed intervention, feeling that this would lead finally to another Old World adventure.

Tomorrow will be another day; but for the present the bare mention of intervention stirs the American dread of any further dealings with Europe or Old World affairs. The memory of 1914-1918 is too near and too clear for Americans to be under any illusions as to what such intervention might come to in the end.

This country is slow to wrath and slow to set its feet upon a path that leads to war. It is not ready now to go a-crusading in Asia Minor.

To the average American it is a thing afar off, a very old quarrel that was old before a white foot touched Plymouth Rock or came to Jamestown. He is not looking for quarrels in the Near East or elsewhere.

While he is not ignoring the human suffering that is making a hell of the Near East, neither is he overlooking the fact that back of it are age-old religious and political controversies.

SOOTHING POWDERS
Powders are so soothing and refreshing to the skin that they can only be considered beneficial. Those who object to the use of any sort of powder must do so for other than physical reasons, for a pure powder used in moderation can never be harmful.

Face powders are so difficult to make, and so easy and inexpensive to buy, that I usually advise my readers not to attempt making these at home. However, here is a simple one which will be found most satisfactory.

Take any desired quantity of powdered starch, the ordinary sort used chased at the drug stores. Put the powder in the covered jar and set it away for a week, stirring occasionally.

The best bath powder, by the way, is nothing but ordinary cooking corn starch perfumed as described above, or mixed with a little sachet powder. This is so inexpensive that a big jar of it can always be kept in the bathroom, and it has a smoothness and silkiness, few expensive powders possess.

Mr. J. M.—Apply an astringent to close the enlarged pores. A suggestion for this is witch hazel, or a few drops of benzoin in about a quart of water. Ice rubs are also good.

June—The teeth are not always at fault when the breath is impure. Sometimes a catarrhal condition in the head or an impaired digestion will cause this same unpleasantness. Correct the cause and do not depend upon scented confections, as they are intended mostly to disguise the odor.

Worried—You could give your hair more applications of the dye until you attain the shade you desire, unless you have decided that your own shade is the best after all. In that case do nothing and wait for the natural shade to return. Many women cut off much of the length to the hair in such cases, as it hastens the recovery.

Boils Quit Quick!

S. S. S. Will Prove to You in Your Own Case the "How" and "Why" of its Remarkable Blood-Cleansing Power!

There is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood-purer, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-boils. Fighting-boils destroys impurities. It fights boils. It always wins! It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It builds nerve-power, thinking power, the digested power that whips a man up into success. It gives women the health, the angelic complexion and the charm that moves the world! These are the reasons that have made S. S. S. today the great blood-cleanser, body-builder, success-builder, and it's why results have made tens of joy flow from the souls of thousands!

Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th St., Washington, D. C., writes: "I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it." Try it yourself. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Upon the shelves the good books stand, unblemished by a reader's hand; the gilt is fresh upon their backs, the covers show no seams or cracks, the stately tomes with wisdom stored make small appeal to readers bored by anything in print whose drift is to instruct or to uplift. The queenly dame who is in charge remarks to me, "Our stock is large of volumes stuffed with useful lore; we have nine tons, or maybe more. Our shelves are loaded to the guards with works of sages and of bards, so choose a book to suit your need, and take it home with you and read." "I'm looking for a book," I say, "a noble work by Bertha Clay, wherein a serving maid named Luke is married to a belted duke; that noble's jealous aunts now rush to put cold poison in her mush; plot follows plot till readers quail—this is an outline of the tale, and I'll be glad as glad can be, if you can find this book for me." "Ah, woe is me," exclaims the dame, "you modern birds are all the same. I thought when I beheld you here, your face so thoughtful and austere, that from the shelf you'd promptly jerk a helpful and uplifting work. But no one wants those noble tomes; you reach for bunk like 'Sherlock Holmes'!"

I receive so many letters from readers of these Talks asking me how to become a writer. I receive no letters asking me how to become a talker!

Writing is expressing yourself in print exactly as you express yourself to others with whom you come in daily contact.

The greatest literature is based upon true expression. Of course, everybody does not have the gift of fine formation of words in expression any more than everybody is able to sing like Caruso or McCormick. For after all, it is more than half-gift.

Stevenson tells in one of his books that he deliberately set out to become a writer. And so at a very early age he started to read everything which interested him. He carried a pad or paper and pencil with him everywhere he went, and wrote and re-wrote his thoughts and his interpretations of other thoughts.

So that, though fine writing is really a gift in the way that fine conversation is, both can be improved. In either case, there must be something back of mere words. If you have something worth saying, and can express it simply, people will read and listen.

The greatest writing is the simplest.

The study of great writing will help you. For words being merely blocks, out of which the writer builds his thoughts, high purpose is required beneath them to make them stand solidly and to give them endurance and life.

The charm of such writers as Stevenson, Whitman and Shakespeare lies in the fact that they had the ability to see clearly and then to put down, simply, exactly what they saw.

The great painting is the one which stimulates your mind to see, even beyond what the artist saw—and that is a point the useful writer must bear in mind. The writer who is able to stimulate my own thoughts and make them work in keener measure, is the one I admire most and who helps me most.

CAUSE OF BLAZE DESTROYING FARM HOME IS UNKNOWN

Loss estimated at $4,000 or more was entailed when fire destroyed the farm home of Elmer Hetsel, James-town pike, just outside the corporate limits Tuesday afternoon.

The blaze started at four o'clock and had gained such headway when discovered that efforts to check it were unavailing. The house, a one-story frame cottage was completely destroyed with most of its contents, only a small amount of the furniture and part of the clothing of Mr. and Mrs. Hetsel being taken from the burning building.

The exact cause of the blaze is unknown. Mr. and Mrs. Hetsel were both in the back part of the house at the time, and there were two fires burning in the house, one in a cook stove and one in a coal oil stove in another room, just beyond the partition. Relatives do not believe the conflagration could have been caused by over-heated stoves as they have been used in the same position for some time. When the fire was discovered it was burning through the partition.

The Fire Department responded to the alarm, but because the fire was directly over the well, could not obtain water to use in fighting the flames. The well at the home of Mrs. D. G. Younk, across the road, was dry. The firemen however, aided in getting out part of the furniture, and used the chemicals to prevent sparks firing the barn, haystack and chicken coop, which were in the path of the wind blowing from the house.

The loss is only partly covered by insurance.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good. Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops. It cures the coughs of bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes. To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ON ROAD TO BONEYARD

"I have just finished a treatment of your wonderful remedy and can say it has done wonders for me already. For the past five years I have been unable to eat any but the lightest food and that but sparingly, as any food caused me to bloat with gas. I was reduced to a skeleton of ninety pounds, and was on the road to the boneyard. A friend in Birmingham sent me a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy, which I took, and I am sure it will entirely cure me of my trouble, judging from what it brought from me and the way I feel." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sayre & Hemphill and druggists everywhere.

SEATS FOR STADIUM STILL TO BE HAD

Local alumni of Ohio State University have assurance today from athletic authorities in Columbus that a block of 15,000 good seats are still available for the Michigan-Ohio State football game and dedication of the new $1,341,000 Ohio Stadium on October 21.

The advice from Columbus is responsive to reports reaching here and in other Ohio cities to the effect that all seats have been disposed of for the dedication festivities.

"In addition to the 15,000 permanent seats in the new bowl still available for the dedication game, we are standing ready to erect temporary bleachers in the open end of the stadium horseshoe to accommodate an additional 10,000 fans if necessary," L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State, informs local alumni. Indicative of the unprecedented interest in the dedication event in the new Ohio Stadium, Director F. H. Yost, of Michigan has wired for 5,000 additional seats in the Michigan section after having exhausted a supply of 10,000 tickets.

Orders are reaching the Athletic House at Ohio State University at the rate of 700 to 1,000 a day, according to Director St. John, who announces that a new attendance record for intercollegiate in the middle west is already assured. The record is held by the Michigan-Ohio State game which re-dedicated enlarged Ferry Field at Ann Arbor last year before 42,000 people.

EXPLAINS WORK OF MILK COMPANIES

The work of the Miami Valley Co-operative Milk Producer's Association and establishment of stations over the ten counties composing the district, and the prospect of the sale of milk throughout the district was explained by A. F. Hedges manager of the company, at the meeting of the Farm Bureau members and the dairy organization members, at the meeting held at the Farm Bureau Hall at Yellow Springs Tuesday evening.

An interesting report, showing the last month's business transacted by the Yellow Springs Station, was given by members of the cream organization.

WOMEN GIVE OUT

Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every Xenia woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to heed this Xenia experience:

Mrs. Woodrow C. Warner, 225 E. Third St., says: "Several years ago I was in misery with pains that seized me through my back. When I stooped to dust I got such terrible sharp stabs of pain through the small of my back I could hardly move at times. Mornings my back and shoulders felt as stiff as a board. I was tired and weak and became dizzy. I also had severe nervous spells. My kidneys were irregular in action and caused me considerable annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills were highly recommended to me so I got some. Several boxes relieved me of the trouble; the pains in my back left and my kidneys became normal."

He Must Grow

And a child to grow needs 16 elements, fed in right proportions.

All those 16 elements are in oats.

He needs six minerals which are found in oats.

He needs vitamins, and oats supply them.

That is why oats hold the place they do as food for growing children.

Yet the oat is a most economical food.

A large dish of Mother's Oats costs less than one bite of meat.

Then why not serve the finest oats?

Why not get the flavor which only large, rich grains supply?

Why not insist on Mother's Oats, which are made to delight the child?

MOTHER'S OATS

The luxury oats—large, luscious flakes

Made for mothers who want children to love oats.

DAYTON EAGLES
TO PLAY IN XENIA

The Dayton Eagles, the football team that claims to be next in importance to the Triangles in Dayton football circles, will be the attraction at the Washington St. Ball Park Sunday afternoon when they stack up against the Xenia American Legion eleven.

The management of the Legion eleven booked a Tarzan in the Dayton outfit, for a game as early as this in the season. In spite of the fact that the Eagles were defeated in their opening game of the season in Columbus last Sunday by the score of 7 to 0, the Xenia City molesters are among the best playing independent football in this section and their defeat was a heart-breaker which does not stand for a reflection on their strength as compared with former years.

All of the former athletes with the Eagles are back on deck this year, including such backfielders as "Gleet" Sillen, former Stivers star, Bobby Drummer, "Ciz" Bergman, Sucher, Friend, Stroll and others who are adept at plunging the line, kicking or throwing or receiving forward passes. On the line will be found practically the same bunch of athletes as have composed the forward wall of the Eagles aggregation for several years, including Meol, McCune and others of high calibre.

Harry Kennedy, sport editor of the Dayton Herald, is again managing the Eagles, and he says his boys are good, which means that they are. As a result of booking this combination the Legion eleven will practice every night this week, under the electric lights at the park with a white football, in order to perfect their play for what they expect will be the toughest assignment of the season.

RETURN INDICTMENTS

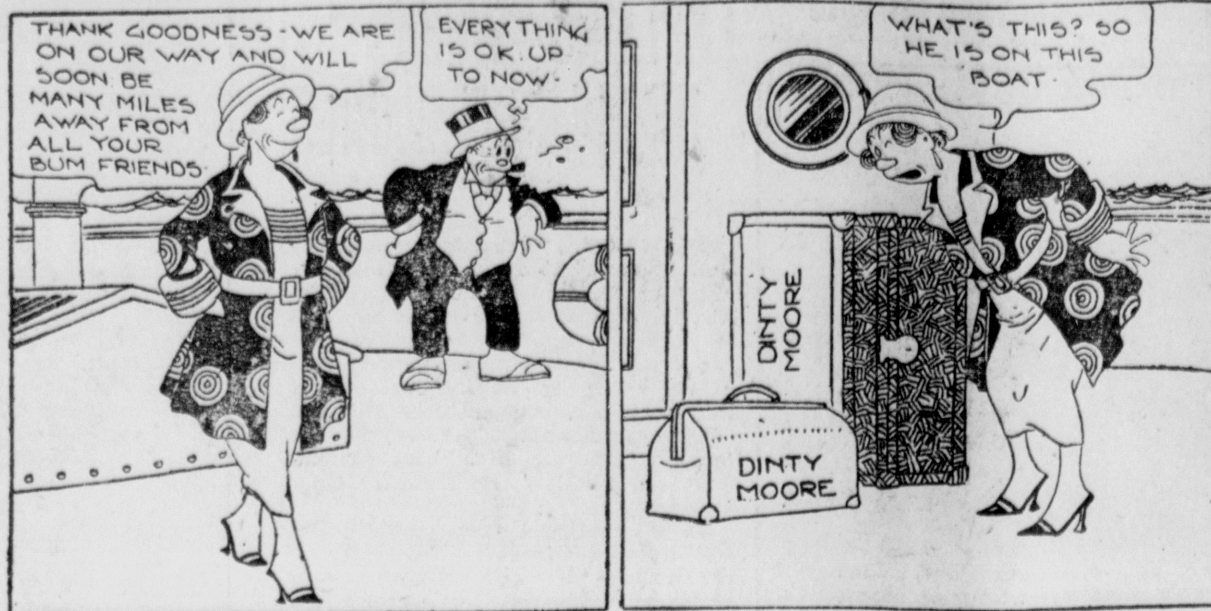

Cincinnati, Oct. 11. — Indictments charging Michael Hilsinger, receiver for the Schaller Brewery Company and his two assistants with maintaining a nuisance and with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws by manufacturing and selling "real" beer were returned yesterday afternoon by the federal grand jury. Samples of beer were seized at the plant several weeks ago for analysis and it was generally reported at the time that the brewery had been closed down although this proved to be only a rumor.

SUPPER ON THE CHAFING DISH

A reader of this column has requested me to publish some chafing dish supper menus. "Not the everlasting Welsh Rabbit!" she begs. "But just ordinary, every-day, nourishing food." I think the following menus come under this classification:

Panned Stuffed Chops
Cornmeal Muffins
Coffee
Cup Cakes

Panned Stuffed Chops: Have your butcher cut some extra-thick rib chops and slit the meat almost through to the bone. For three chops prepare the following amount of dressing, to be stuffed in the slits: Mix together one heaping cup of bread crumbs, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, a dash of paprika, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, one tablespoon of raw grated onion, two tablespoons of melted butter, a drop of Worcester Sauce, one teaspoon of tomato catsup, and a pinch of sage. When you have filled the chops with this mixture fasten the edges of the slits together either with a few stitches or with toothpicks. Fry these, with the pan cover on, in bacon grease till brown and cooked on one side; then turn and fry till done.

Macaroni Supreme
Quick Hiscuit

Macaroni Supreme: Melt one tablespoon of butter in the chafing dish and stir into it one tablespoon of flour and one cup of strained canned tomato. When thickened, add one-half cup of grated or shaved cheese, one-eighth teaspoon of dry mustard, a pinch of salt, a generous pinch of baking soda and three-fourths of a cup of cooked and drained macaroni. Serve on slices of crisply toasted and buttered bread.

Eggs Montague
Cocoa
Graham Gems

Fruit Cake

Eggs Montague: Pick over one cup of smoked dried beef (chipped beef) and chop finely. Put it into a hot chafing dish with 2 tablespoons of butter, one cup of canned tomatoes, one-fourth cup of grated or shaved cheese, one tablespoon of finely chopped raw onion and a pinch of pepper. When heated through, add three well-beaten eggs and continue to cook until the eggs have a creamy look, stirring and scraping the bottom of the pan constantly. Then serve at once. This is delicious and very nourishing.

Small side dishes such as crisp radishes, stuffed olives, salted peanuts and after-dinner mints add attractiveness to a chafing dish guest supper. A salad—preferably of diced fruit covered with Mayonnaise dressing—is also a great addition.

FAIL TO GET CASE
IN STATE SUPREME COURT

The State Supreme Court Tuesday overruled a motion for an order directing the Greene County Appellate Court to certify its record in the case of the National Mutual Insurance Co. against Philip Herman.

The original action was one in which Herman sought to recover the amount of insurance due on a policy held on an automobile that was burned up. A jury in the Common Pleas Court gave Herman a judgment of more than $300 and the Appellate Court upheld the decision. Attorneys for the insurance company attempted to get the case in supreme court, which motion was overruled Tuesday.

The insurance company was represented in the action by Judge C. H. Kyle of this city and Attorney James B. Johnson of Celina and Attorneys Marcus Shoup and Harry D. Smith representing Herman.

A Stenographer's Romance

BY JANE PHELPS

A LOVE THAT BANISHED FEAR
(CHAPTER 93)

Donald had given Nellie a ring. As he slipped it on her finger she asked rather timidly:

"Would you rather I wouldn't wear this one, Donald?" referring to the one George Fallon had insisted she keep, and which she wore on her right hand.

"Why should I? No, Nellie, wear it. He is simply a good friend now, about to marry. I hope I am not so small as to begrudge you the pleasure wearing a handsome ring given you, simply because the giver cares for you. Poor devil, how could he help it?"

Nellie laughed merrily. She was glad to wear her beautiful ring, but would have willingly laid it away had Donald wished.

"I was never so happy over it as I am over this one," she told him, "because I felt I shouldn't have it."

"And you feel you should have the one I bought?" he teased.

"Indeed I do! I feel as if I had belonged to you always, Donald. I never have had a minute's uncertainty. I will try to make you happy, dear, even if I do have to learn to cook before Miss Pitt will visit us."

Finally the little home was all ready. They invited Mrs. Roberts to go with them for a final inspection. Then they would lock it up until they were married—which would be in just a week.

The room were good size and with their tinted walls and light wood work, very attractive—the dining room, smaller than the bed room was fascinating with its painted furniture; the china closet, filled with dishes of delft blue, the rug carrying out the color scheme as did the draperies at the windows. The living room, cozy, comfortable, and "invitable," as Donald declared was hung with chintz, and the same material was used to cushion the chairs and broad couch heaped with pillows. A good sized table with a reading lamp, a bookcase with Donald's books, completed the furnishings. The bedroom was in rose and gray cretone, twin beds, bureau and chiffonier of gray. Donald had been awfully extravagant, so Nellie told Mrs. Roberts, and after she had selected the colors had allowed one of the decorators in the department store to go ahead and make up the draperies.

"I don't think he was extravagant, and you have a very lovely home."

"Wait until you have seen this kitchen," Nellie breathlessly interrupted. When Mrs. Roberts exclaimed over its completeness, Nellie was radiant. It was all white—woodwork, table, cupboards, and ice-box. The rows of shining pans and other cooking utensils, some of them arranged on the wall, over the shining gas stove, gave the room a festive air.

"I don't believe any girl ever had a lovelier home!" Nellie said as they walked back to the boarding house.

"I know a girl who might have had a mansion," Donald teased and who is awfully sweet to be satisfied with four rooms."

"Satisfied! I love them more than I could any mansion that ever was built. And I'm not afraid of them, I would be of a mansion."

Mrs. Roberts had been delighted with everything, praising the good taste, the completeness of the dainty furnishings. She knew it had taken all of Donald's savings, but he had told her everything was paid for—that he wouldn't start with debt hanging over them.

"I'm going to be the best housekeeper you ever saw," Nellie declared, so excited she couldn't keep still. "How I shall love keeping that little place in order and cooking for Donald. He's awfully tired of boarding and is already planning things he wants me to cook for him." Later she said to Mrs. Roberts: "I am so happy it almost makes me afraid I haven't had one m/h/g/ving, one single fear of the future."

"True love casteth out all fear," my dear. And you truly love Donald. Neither have I any misgivings about your future with him. And, dear, true unselfish devoted love is the 'greatest thing in the world'."
